'I DID IT', HEIRENS CONFESSES

Vets to Stage 'Victory' Parade In City

GROUPS UNITE TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Men Who Served in Greatest War to March Again in Mansfield Aug. 14.

Recalling the joy with which Mansfield received the news of the end of the greatest of wars nearly a year ago, city and county veterans will unite Aug. 14 in a parade and 'Victory day' celebration in the city.

Plans were mapped last night by a committee of 12 World War II veterans for a parade of all city and county veterans of the second World war with Mansfield's five heroes of Bataan in the seat of honor as honorary parade marshals.

Climaxing the parade, which will begin at 6:30 p. m. in front of the American Legion, will be a formal retreat ceremony to be staged by the color guard of Co. M, Ohio State Guard, at the flagpole in Central park.

Following the retreat ceremony which will conclude the formal part of the program, open house will be held at the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Richland Post No. 72, American Legion, Disabled American Veterans and other veterans' clubs.

Ex-Servicemen March.

Jointly sponsored by local veterans' for all World War II veterans regardless of affiliation, the majority of Richland county's 6,800 returned servicemen are expected to participate and have been invited to share in the program to clebrate as they did or wanted to a year ago

Marshals for the parade, other than honorary, are William M. Colby, representing the European theater veterans, and H. R. Crichfield, representing Pacific theater veterans of the past war.

Route of march for veterans and other participants divided into four divisions will be down Park Avenue from the Legion home to Mulberry street, north on Mulberry to West Fourth street, east on Fourth to North Main street, and south on Main to Central park where the parade will disband after retreat.

Marchers will be divided into four divisions each headed by a division marshal. The first division will include former prisoners of war and all army veterans, headed by Fred Hallabrin.

The second division will include all navy, marine and coast guard veterans, headed by Robert E Rogers as division marshal. Miss Mary Jane Bellore will lead the third division comprising all service women, including nurses and auxiliaries, and George Herring will be marshal for the fourth division which will include Boy and

STUDY CASES

Minneapolis Begins Canvass of All Polio Patients.

MINNEAPOLIS —(INS)— The Minneapolis Board of Public Welfare planned to begin a canvass today of all patients hospitalized with infantile paralysis in an exhaustive research into the causes of the outbreak which claimed six additional deaths yesterday.

A total of 675 cases of polio resulting in 64 deaths have been recorded in Minnesota so far this year.

In the Minneapolis area, 11 public health nurses will interview all patients. They will obtain information as to all environmental, dietary and other activities for a full two-week period preceding contraction of the disease.

Probe Crash of Huge Globemaster

LONG BEACH, Calif. —(UP)— Army officers today took charge of the wreckage of a C-74 Globemaster, world's largest transport plane which last week set a new weight-lifting record and crashed yesterday during experimental diving tests.

The pilot, Russell K. Thaw, who suffered minor injuries, told investigators that the plans went out of control after a wing came off during the dive tests. All four members of the civilian crew parachuted to safety.

Better Be Good, Says GOP to OPA

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Congressional Republicans served notice today that they will keep close tabs on the OPA while congress is away to see if it does what the administration has promised.

"The OPA is on trial," house Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, Mass., told a reporter. "If the administration fails to prevent inflation we won't hesitate to call the people's attention to it."

Rep. Thomas Jenkins, R., O., chairman of the GOP food study committee, said his committee staff would be busy all summer checking food supplies and prices

CHANCE FADES FOR REP. MAY TO TELL STORY

Senators Unwilling to Force Ailing Congressman to Appear at Probe.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Some senators were beginning to doubt today that ailing Rep. Andrew J. May D., Ky., ever will tell the senate war investigating committee how he became "guardian angel" of the Garsson munitions combine.

Committee members who declined use of their names said the committee was shying away from forcing the 71-year-old congressman to return from his Prestonsburg, Ky., home to take the witness chair.

These committee members said they did not want to be in the position of appearing to endanger May's health.

May's home town physician, Dr. John Archer, says his condition is critical. And without clearance from May's attorneys and doctors, the committee was not expected to try to subpoena May to testify about his dealings with Dr. Henry and Murray Garsson, who ran a letterhead into a 16-firm midwest munitions syndicate which received $78,000,000 in government contracts.

Committee Chairman James M. Mead, D., N. Y., apparently pressing for prosecutions as a result of the Garsson inquiry, scheduled conferences today with Attorney General Tom C. Clark and Internal Revenue Commissioner Joseph D. Nunan, jr Mead hinted strongly that his talk with Clark would concern forthcoming justice department action in the Garsson case.

Maybe You Can Identify Lake Victim

Someone in the Mansfield area may be able to help identify a well-dressed man who was buried on the beach of Pelee island in Lake Erie without funeral rites, last Saturday afternoon after his body was washed ashore.

The middle-aged man, whose body apparently had been in the lake about a week, had no papers to identify him. His belt buckle had the initial "T" on it and he carried a pocket knife with a carved handle. He wore a blue checked shirt.

Because there are no burial facilities on the Canadian island, caretakers at the resort buried him in the beach sand, it was explained today by George W. Fox, 79 Sherman avenue, who was on a weekend fishing trip to Pelee when the body was found.

The island, about 30 miles off the Ohio shore in Lake Erie, is frequented by Mansfield area vacationists, and Fox said it was possible the man might be known in this area.

26 Chinese Die For Aid to Japs

SHANGHAI— (UP)—Twenty-six Chinese, including one woman, executed by a firing squad today following their conviction on charges of collaborating with Japanese military police during the occupation.

Wan Li-Long, former leader of a Chinese guerilla band, was among those executed. He was held responsible for the assassination of several Chinese patriots in Shanghai.

Thunderous Ocean Upheaval, Earth Tremors, Crushing Waves Terrify Dominican Peasants

2 Towns Flattened as Water Sweeps Inland; Death Toll Mounting

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic—(UP)—Horrified peasants who lived through the earthquake and tidal wave on the northern Dominican shore described it today as a thunderous upheaval which ripped open the earth, sent up sulfurous fumes and churned the Atlantic into a frenzy.

Fragmentary reports from the stricken northeastern shore disclosed an exceptional geologic disturbance of frightful majesty.

Thousands of peasants fled into the woods and hid while the earth continued to shiver spasmodically long after the first violent quake early Sunday afternoon.

In San Juan, on nearby Puerto Rico, seismographs recorded more than 50 small quakes in the West Indies between Sunday afternoon and last night.

The towns of Matanzas and Villa Julia Molina at the head of Escocesa bay were reported virtually flattened by the tidal wave. Persons reaching here from Matanzas said there were many casualties.

Four persons were reported dead. Broken communications delayed a check on casualties, and the toll may run much higher.

COMPARE EXPLOSIONS TO ATOM BOMB BLAST.

Before the earthquake, witnesses said, booming submarine explosions of great intensity were heard. They compared them to descriptions of atom bomb explosions.

Then the quake hit. Buildings collapsed. Railroad tracks were twisted like strands of steel. Roads were torn up. Villagers passing a sleepy Sunday afternoon in the excessive heat jumped up and ran for open country.

Next came the tidal wave.

With a swelling roar it rolled up the bay and smashed against the towns. Dwellings and shops were swept away by the waves. Slabs of walls and roofs were hurled inland from the shore.

(A U. S. Navy pilot from Puerto Rico who flew over Matanzas said the tidal wave seemed to have destroyed most of the town.)

After the tidal wave, reports said, there were jagged ruptures in the earth's surface. Fountains of sulfurous waters were said to have spurted from the crevices.

Apparently the center of the earthquake was a spot nearly 10 miles below the Atlantic ocean surface off the coast. Roger M. Wilson of the San Juan observatory said the center was many miles from Puerto Rico and "possibly straight down."

Material damage from the earth tremors was reported very great in San Francisco de Macoris and other cities a few miles inland. Business and social organizations are aiding the government in relief work.

REVIEW BOARD OK'S 3 DRIVES

Campaigns of Jaycees, Tyger Club, Amvets Get Approval of New Organization.

The Mansfield Public Appeals Review board last night approved the applications of three organizations to conduct fund drives in the city, including those of the Tyger club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Amvets.

According to board Chairman J. H. Gongwer, the Tyger club was authorized to conduct a membership campaign through Aug. 31, and the Amvets to sell its national flower, the white clover, on city streets Aug. 30. The Tyger club seeks to raise $5,000 through new members.

The Junior C. of C. was granted permission to solicit merchants for about $275 or merchandise contributions for prizes for the Richland County golf tournament. The campaign must end before Sept. 1, Gongwer said

The board also voted to recommend that an attempt be made next year to consolidate into a single drive all solicitations for the benefit of schools and school organizations, the chairman said.

Gongwer said that all approvals were unanimous. In addition, he announced the appointment of J. G. Blahnik as board member representing the Retail Merchants association.

Nebraskan Calls For End of Foreign Relief, Loans.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sen Hugh Butler, R., Neb., returning from an around-the-world air trip, today called for an end of large-scale government relief shipments and loans to foreign nations.

The Nebraskan traveled 35,000 miles and visited 28 countries with a five-man congressional group. He reported widespread "confusion and distrust," and a threat of revolutionary governments in nearly all corners of the globe.

Abundant harvests throughout Europe, Butler said in an interview, would make unnecessary further large-scale relief shipments. He reported most crops appeared in "wonderful" shape.

Stores Soon Will Have Shirts, Shorts--Maybe

Retail Clothier Spokesman Thinks Cotton Price Hike Will Encourage Greater Production.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A spokesman for retail clothing merchants said wistfully today that higher textile prices may put $2.25 shirts and 79-cent shorts back on store shelves.

Louis Rothschild, executive director of the National Association of Retail Clothiers, told a reporter that the average 16 per cent increase in cotton textile ceilings put into effect by OPA yesterday "undoubtedly will encourage greater production."

Manufacturers will have an incentive to produce shirts to retail at $2.25 and shorts at 79 cents," Rothschild said.

He said they should begin to re-appear in stores in about 30 days.

OPA Grants Boosts.

OPA said the 16 per cent textile increase will boost cotton clothing prices six to eight per cent and jump the cost of household linens about 17 per cent.

While OPA was boosting textile prices to meet requirements of the new price control law, the agency's consumer advisory committee called for caution in lifting ceilings from basic commodities, especially food.

This advice topped a five-point anti-inflation program the committee offered yesterday. Other recommendations:

1. Creation of a strong consumers' organization "on a local, state and national basis."

2. Coordination of the anti-inflation fight by President Truman, who should "take immediate steps to set up advisory committees to represent the consumer view in all agencies charged with administering the present (price control) act.

10 INJURED IN AUTO MISHAPS

7 Persons Hurt Today When Cars Collide Near Ashland; Child Run Down.

Ten persons were injured in four traffic accidents in the Mansfield area yesterday and today.

Seven of the injured were victims of a two-car collision on U. S. Route 250 one mile east of Rowsburg (Ashland county) at 9 a. m. today. All were from out of the state.

A five-year-old North Mulberry street girl and a Newark, N. J., woman were in fair condition at General hospital today after suffering possible skull fractures received in traffic accidents in or near Mansfield.

Police reported Patricia Joan Roush, 5, of 389 North Mulberry street, was injured when struck by a Hanley-Honneger Milling company truck at the entrance to the mill on North Mulberry street yesterday.

Receiving a possible skull fracture when the auto her husband was driving upset on Ashland hill at 3 a. m. today was Mrs. Strickland Davis, 29, of Newark, N. J.

Police said the Roush girl was hit by a truck driven by Sylvester H. Blubaugh, 19, of 138 West Third street, who told officers he had stopped his vehicle prepara-

Turkish Politics in Biggest Upheaval Since 1938.

ANKARA — (AP) — Hecep Peker, who fought beside Kemal Ataturk 23 years ago in the successful revolt against the sultans, undertook today to form a new Turkish government replacing that of Premier Sukru Saracoglu, which resigned last night in the face of heavy opposition to its domestic policies.

Saracoglu's resignation represented one of the greatest upheavals in Turkish politics since Ataturk died in 1938 and Ismet Inonu followed him as president. It was the result of popular dissatisfaction, particularly with the high cost of living.

Post Bond, Briggs Out At Ashland

Relatives Get Release for Suspect; Semler Probe 'Cloaked.'

ASHLAND—Charles E. Briggs, 62, Lake township farmer indicted for second degree murder in the berry patch shooting of Mrs. Roger McKinley, was free under $10,000 bond today but Ashland authorities just weren't talking about the second unusual death in three days that rocked this community last week.

When questioned by telephone this morning about progress in clearing up how Mrs. Semler's razor-slashed body got into the cistern at the rear of her Maple street home, Police Chief Harry Smith said he had no comment to make and abruptly hung up.

Prosecutor C. W. Chorpening this morning also offered a terse: "No comment."

FIND BLOODSTAINS ON BACK STEPS

Washed bloodstains on the back steps of the Semler home were found by chemical means, police revealed yesterday. They also said the department fingerprint expert found prints on Mrs. Semler's body and on the wooden cistern cover

Previously, authorities had said they were unable to find a trace of blood between the bathroom where Mrs. Semler was reported to have died and the cistern where her body was found.

Coroner A. D. Lewis could not be reached for questioning as to whether the evidence thus far gathered was sufficient for a verdict on the cause of Mrs. Semler's death.

County authorities released Briggs yesterday afternoon under bond posted by his wife, Dortha, her brother, Jay Blaine Dalton, of North of Ashland and her sister, Mrs. Mae Fletcher, of Perry township.

Briggs left the jail accompanied by his wife, presumably to return to his farm south of Jeromesville.

Chorpening, said that the grand jury would take up Brigg's case during the September session. Earlier he had said he would call a special session of the jury if Briggs did not post bond.

MISSOURI VOTE PROVIDES TEST

Truman's Prestige at Stake in Outcome of District Congressional Race.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—(INS)—The political prestige of President Truman was tested today in his home state of Missouri.

Voters went to the polls in a primary election to nominate Democratic and Republican candidates for U. S senator, congress, and various state, county and city offices.

Chief interest was centered on the Fifth congressional district where Rep. Roger C. Slaughter, (D) of Kansas City, sought renomination in the face of opposition from President Truman.

Mr. Truman told a recent news conference that he opposed Slaughter because the congressman would not support many administration recommendations.

Slaughter is a member of the house rules committee

The chief executive is supporting Enos Axtell of Hickman Hills, one of the two candidates opposing Slaughter for the Democratic nomination. The other is Jerome Walsh, Kansas City attorney.

In the Democratic contest for the senatorial nomination, State Senator Frank P. Briggs was picked by political observers to win renomination from opponents Ben Marvin Casteel and Robert I. Young, both of St. Joseph

Candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination are James P. Kem of Kansas City, former congressman William P. Elmer, of Salem, former state senator Ray Mabee, of Unionville; William McKinley Thomas, St. Louis shoe worker, and Dr. Herman G Grosby of St. Louis. Kem ruled favorite to capture the GOP nomination

Enlistments Drop, Draft Need Grows

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Army and selective service officials said today that the recent drop in voluntary enlistments will force the drafting of 25,000 men when conscription is resumed Sept. 1.

They said July enlistments averaged only 9,500 a week—well below the goal of 25,000 a week.

BARES CRUEL BRUTALITY OF GIRL'S DEATH

Youth Gives Full and Horrible Details After Balking at First Conference.

CHICAGO —(AP)— State's Attorney William J. Tuohy said today that William Heirens had confessed he killed Suzanne Degnan, six-year-old kidnap victim.

The prosecutor said he asked the 17-year-old University of Chicago student "did you kill Suzanne Degnan?" Heirens replied, the prosecutor added "Yes sir."

The question was the sixth propounded by the prosecutor at a "confession conference" in his office arranged by Heirens' attorneys.

* * *

More to Come.

Heirens' attorneys announced prior to a similar "confession conference" arranged a week ago that the youth also would confess the "lipstick" slaying last Dec. 10 of Frances Brown, 33 year old former Wave, and the fatal stabbing June 2, 1945 of Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43 year old widow.

The earlier conference was upset when Heirens replied "I don't remember" to all pertinent questions.

The Degnan slaying shocked the nation with its brutality. The golden-haired daughter of a Chicago OPA executive was stolen from her bed by an abductor who left a note demanding $20,000 ransom.

* * *

Father's Plea Futile.

The victim's father, James Degnan, made a series of radio broadcasts pleading with her abductor: "don't harm her, she's only a little girl," but the same night police found the parts of her dismembered body in sewers in her north side neighborhood.

William Heirens told Tuohy he strangled Suzanne Degnan with his fingers as she lay in her bed and then took her body to the basement of a nearby apartment building and cut it to pieces.

He claimed he was in a sort of daze when he killed the six-year-old girl last Jan. 7. After dropping the parts of her dismembered body in sewers in her neighborhood, he added, he returned to the "dissecting" room and wrote a note demanding $20,000 ransom.

He said he selected his victim entirely by chance. He was in the neighborhood earlier, he related, and observed the window of her bedroom was not closed. It was then he got the idea of entering the house, he added.

Heirens, 17-year-old University of Chicago student, related details of the shocking slaying to Tuohy, a group of police officials and his own attorneys at a "confession conference" in Tuohy's office.

Heirens, in his confession, said he flashed his flashlight in the Degnan girl's room and saw a "female with long hair" asleep. He said his vision was "not too good."

"Then what did you do?" Tuohy asked.

"I strangled her."

"When you strangled her, how did you strangle her?"

"With my fingers."

"Around the neck?"

"Yes."

"Had the child said something to you before you did that?"

"No. She made some utterances. I do not know what they were, too inarticulate to make out."

"How long did you keep your hands on her neck would you say?"

"About two minutes."

"You squeezed as hard as you could?"

"Until everything went limp."

Three-Way Reducing Program Cuts Income of Ohio Cities

(No. Two in a series of four stories on the financial condition of Ohio cities.)

* * *

By KEN DAVIS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Currently about as thin as a cigaret paper, pocketbooks of Ohio's cities have been sweating out a three-way reducing program for the last 15 years.

No Turkish bath ever melted fat any faster than the cost of poor relief during the depression, the 10-mill property tax limitation law and the rocketing cost of living have deflated the financial cushion on which these cities had been sitting.

Certainly, no explanation of the costs of poor relief during the 1930s is necessary, for the depression reached in a measure into practically every Ohio home.

The bread lines, the soup kitchens, the lines of the unemployed stretched before the eye no matter where it roamed.

Nor are rocketing costs of government particularly difficult to comprehend.

Inflation Hurts.

Inflation hits the city as hard as it does you and your wife. The little woman buys hamburger; the city lays it on the line for fire engines or street flushers. They both pay inflated prices today.

City government costs bounced upward 38.1 per cent in the 10 years ended in 1944. State-wide expenditures by cities in Ohio totaled $152,923,305 in 1944. The figure in 1941 was only $110,728,808.

To bring it down to a more understandable level, consider the case of the state's largest city—Cleveland. That metropolis spent $29,556,714 in 1935, but it had to part with $55,515,743 in 1944.

One of the largest factors in this governmental cost increase has been salaries and wages—up 83.6 per cent in the 10-year period.

The real pressure behind this geyser of red ink, however, is the state-imposed 10-mill limitation on property taxes.

The electorate in 1933 amended the state constitution so that city, county and school districts could levy a combined total of no more than 10 mills, or $10 for each $1,000 of property valuation, without turning to the voters for approval of additional millage

That did it.

Acutely pocketbook-conscious, the public time and again has shown its unwillingness to approve additional millage for current operations, and elective city officials are extremely reluctant to go to the public with such a request

Prior to the constitutional amendment in 1933, the millage limitation had been set at 15. Since that amendment, county expenditures, paced by sharply slashed relief and interest bills, have dropped, and school districts have been more versatile than cities in finding new means of aid.

Furthermore, a certain amount of grief has been encountered in increasing demands for increased services.

The net result is putting gray hairs into the puzzled heads of Ohio's city officials.

CANNERY BRINGS SEWER PROBLEM

Officials Discuss Increase in Size of Line to State Reformatory.

Preliminary plans were discussed yesterday for increasing the size of a reformatory-to-city sewer line in order to handle increased sewage when a new OSR cannery goes into operation next year.

State and city officials, in what Mayor Roy W. Vaughn described as a "warm up" discussion, agreed that a new line, with possibly a new location, will have to be considered.

Vaughn said that W. R. Terry, supervisor of maintenance at the OSR, indicated that the new $40,000 cannery now under construction would increase by 50 per cent the institution's sewage out-put.

Next step in the sewer expansion project, Vaughn said, will be to determine how it will be financed. It is still indefinite, he said, how much of the cost will have to be borne by the state, and city and whether the county and Madison township will have to participate.

Attending yesterday's meeting, in addition to Vaughn, Terry and Service-Safety Director William W. Enlow, was Councilman Charles N. Shultz, of council's sewer-garbage committee, G. A. Hall, state department of health; and H. R. Geiser and J. H. Townsend of the department of public welfare

The cannery, now under construction, will can produce from other state institutions thereby increasing the institution's cannery work. It will also replace an out-moded canning method.

Vaughn said that the new sewer line, when installed, would benefit not only the reformatory, but sections of Mansfield through which it would pass

(By Central Press)

WASHINGTON — The Smithsonian Institution has been a "must" on sight-seeing lists of visitors to the nation's capital for many generations, and on August 10 this famous scientific establishment will celebrate its 100th birthday.

Congress debated for more than eight years the question of whether to make the government a ward by accepting the $550,000 bequest of James Smithson, and in 1846 decided to the affirmative. Smithson, an English scientist who had been a vice-president of the Royal Society, died in 1829 at Genoa.

Although he had never visited the United States, the Britisher left his entire estate to the United States of America "to found at Washington, under the name of Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men"

The United States was engaged in war with Mexico 100 years ago when Congress finally made up its mind to accept Smithson's bequest, which by that time had grown to $750,000— a huge amount in those days.

During all the years since, through war and peace, the Smithsonian Institution has devoted its efforts to the worthy cause of increasing and diffusing "knowledge among men."

During World War II the extensive facilities of the Smithsonian were utilized by the Army, the Navy, and various war agencies for information vital to planning and waging a world-wide war.

Helps Win War.

Shortly after the war started it became apparent that definite war duties were going to be assigned the Smithsonian Institution. The secretary of the Institution appointed a war committee to study all the Smithsonian's facilities and make recommendations, in order that information provided the Army, Navy and other government agencies might be of greater possible usefulness.

An ethnological board was set up jointly by the Smithsonian and three other agencies to serve as a clearinghouse. Thousands of requests for technical information were handled, either directly by the Smithsonian staff or by the ethnological board.

The Smithsonian Institution started its activities a century ago in a single building, which is still used as an administrative headquarters. The "establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men" has grown, however, until today it directs six government bureaus, besides the privately endowed Freer Gallery of Art.

It occupies five buildings on the Mall between the Washington Monument and the Capitol, besides numerous additional buildings at the National Zoological park in Washington's famous Rock Creek park.

The Smithsonian has long served as a training center for scientists, especially biology and ethnology. It has been a birthplace of scientific ideas and a laboratory for scientific research. It has served as national headquarters for the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

PLANT BUILT FOR WAR NOW ENRICHES SOIL

Prairie Factory Turning Out Constant Supply of Ammonium Nitrate.

PITTSBURG, Kas.—(AP)— Tiny white pellets to enrich midwestern soil are pouring from the same machines in a Kansas factory that a year ago were turning out deadly explosives.

Without interrupting its 24-hour-a-day schedule, a huge, war-born chemical plant on the prairie has turned the steady flow of ammonium nitrate from blockbuster bombs to the production of harmless fertilizer. Now it ranks as one of the world's largest producers of fertilizer-grade ammonium nitrate.

No visible change came over the sprawling jayhawk ordnance plant, 22 miles south of here, when it became the Spencer Chemical company. Most of the 550 employes didn't even know when their machines stopped turning out material for explosives and began producing it for fertilizer.

To Kenneth A. Spencer, 44, who conveived the idea of a wartime basic chemical plant in Kansas, there is romance and drama in the furnaces, pipes, compressors and stills spread over 1,260 acres.

"No private concern would have gambled 30 million dollars to build a chemical plant so far from industry," said Spencer, also the president of a Kansas coal mining company. But he stressed the accessible supply of natural gas, coal, air and water—the four basic needs for ammonium nitrate—and sold the idea to the government. He was asked to form the company, to design and operate the plant, although he then knew little about chemistry.

The plant had a war record of continual operation at 140 per cent of designed capacity to produce 400,000 tons of high explosives. Spencer and his colleagues took it over officially from the government when they acquired the property last June in a $20,000,000 lease-sale contract.

"We'll have not only an abundant source of cheap farm fertilizer close to the middle western market, but also our products may be the start of many other industrial enterprises in this area," Spencer predicted.

The problem now isn't in getting farmers to sprinkle the radish seed-like pellets on their pastures, but in producing enough of the crystals to meet government foreign commitments and still have any left over for the midwest.

Only a few of the 15,000 tons being produced monthly at the plant are available for domestic use. The rest go abroad.

The cost to farmers in the area will be about $4.70 an acre—approximately $4 a ton less than then before the war, when the United States was largely dependent on Chilean nitreates.

Tests have shown that boosting the nitrogen content of the soil with fertilizer makes it possible to graze the typical pasture from a week to ten days earlier.

Shelby Water Plant Filters Worn Out, City Council Told

SHELBY—Water from municipal water company plant is pure and soft but may have a slight taste from filter beds that should be renewed, Eart Witmer, of Marion, representative of the Floyd G. Brown associates of Marion, technical supervisors for the plant, disclosed last night in a report to city council.

Pointing out that a third filter bed was to have been installed at the plant two years ago had material been available, Witmer said that the operation of the plant was as good here as was found in any other city but that the two filter beds now in use should be renewed.

Reminding the council he was not dealing in personalities, Witmer disclosed that he had tried to get the operators to use valves on the filter beds to regulate the water flow but had not been given any co-operation.

"It is especially hard to get the taste and odor out of surface water and any chemical with taste added to the treatment is done so to kill bacteria to prevent disease," Witmer declared

The engineer was asked to give a report after the council passed a resolution two weeks ago aimed at splitting the supervision of the water company from that of the municipal light company. Supt. J. P. Adkins, who now heads both plants, was present and pointed out that materials for the third filter had been ordered two years ago.

Mayor Frank Long was authorized by the council to purchase the necessary materials to put the third filter bed in operation.

Mayor Long read the resolution passed by the Shelby Better Business club pertaining to the fire department which had been brought to the council in verbal form at the last meeting by M. E. Berkley, president The resolution asked for the fire department to hold weekly drills for the regular and volunteer firemen, provide proper technical training, get more and better equipment, and give the men good training in first aid.

Fire Chief Eugene Schull, who was present at the meeting, said that he was investigating a government program to send a Kent State universty representative here to supervise a training class for the firemen and the class for firemen being conducted at Ohio State university representative give a report to council on Aug. 19 on the possibilities of training the firemen.

E. E. Eckert, second ward councilman, said that he favored having the Junior Chamber of Commerce board pick a different site than Main street for the Shelby community street fair in 1947 No action was taken on the matter.

Water mains will be extended on Jeffrey avenue by legislation approved by council, and Supt. Adkins pointed out that there would be no street lights available until this fall.

Babies Say 'Papa' First, Claims Language Professor

CHICAGO—(UP)—The professor has spoken. Mama, read and weep:

"Babies," he said today, "usually say 'papa' before they say 'mama'"

The professor is Werner F. Leopold, who teaches German at Northwestern university. He also is a papa. He also could be prejudiced. Mrs. Leopold hasn't been heard from yet.

"It is natural," he said, "that fond mothers, waiting for the traditional word, joyfully interpret it as a reference to themselves.

"At first these babbling syllables have no meaning at all, but are mere muscle exercise. In the case I studied, 'papa' was uttered half a month before 'mama,' and was said with meaning two and a half months earlier."

His study is based on day-to-day notes on the speech development of his two daughters Hildegard, now 16 years old, and Karla, 10. The university says it is the most complete study of speech development by a linguist in the world.

From their birth the professor spoke to his children only in German while their mother conversed with them in English. They favor Enlgish, he said, because as they grew older they heard more persons speaking English than German.

His observations are being published in three volumes.

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

SIMPLY DREADFUL

Impostors always are at hand
Of sympathy to take command.
—Old Mother Nature.

It was true. Redeye the Vireo admitted that he and Mrs. Redeye had once more been imposed on by Sally Sly the Cowbird. One of her eggs had been left in their nest and had been hatched with their own eggs. So now they had five babies, four of their own and one of Sally Sly's.

"If he were the same size as our own I wouldn't mind so much. Then all would share alike. But he is so big! It isn't his fault, poor thing, that he has no mother of his own to feed him and look after him. After all, he is just a baby and helpless," said Mrs. Redeye mournfully.

Did you say helpless!" demanded Redeye as the young Cowbird snatched a mouthful of food from his bill despite his efforts to give it one of his own babies.

Mrs. Redeye sighed. It was a worried sigh. "It is because he is so big. That is the real trouble.

Then they had found the missing baby on the ground.

Were he no bigger than one of our own babies he couldn't do that. No, sir, he couldn't do that. But he is so much bigger and stronger than our own darlings that he can and does snatch the food right out of their mouths. So he gets most of it. The more he gets the faster he grows. He is growing twice as fast as they are, and, of course, the bigger he gets the worse off our poor dears are. If Sally Sly couldn't bother to sit on her eggs long enough to hatch them, the least she could do now would be to help feed her children. There must be more than this one. I am sure we are not the only ones she has imposed on." said Mother Redeye.

"If that fellow was in my nest I wouldn't feed him. What do you do it for. You don't have to. Let him go without for a while. That would teach him manners. Yes, sir, that would teach him better manners," said Kitty the Catbird, a neighbor of the Redeyes.

"But we can't do that!" cried Mrs. Redeye.

"Why can't you?" demanded Kitty.

"Because our own babies would starve, too, poor things. We can't feed them and not feed that greedy fellow because he is so big and strong he grabs the food in spite of all we can do to prevent it," explained Mrs. Redeye.

Just then Redeye, who had slipped away while the others were talking, returned with a choice mouthful. He tried his best to put it into the wide-open mouth of one of the Redeye babies, but the greedy little Cowbird got it.

"You see," said Mrs. Redeye.

"Throw him out. Throw him right out of the nest," said Kitty.

"We can't do that either," said Redeye. "He is too big for us to manage."

Kitty saw that this was true. He was himself so much bigger than either of his Vireo neighbors that he could do easily what his small neighbors couldn't do at all. "Too bad," said he. "He's a lucky youngster not to be in our nest. He wouldn't stay there long. I can tell him that," said he and flew away.

Very early the next morning Mr. and Mrs. Redeye were heard crying mournfully. Of course the neighbors hurried to find out what the trouble was. They found the Vieros heartbroken. While they were away hunting breakfast for the babies something dreadful had happened. Mrs. Redeye had been first back to the nest and right away had discovered that one of her babies was missing. There were but three wee Vireos and the big Cowbird youngster. At first they had suspected that some one, perhaps Sammy Jay or Blacky the Crow, had carried off the missing one. Then they had found the missing baby on the ground. Somehow he had fallen from the nest.

"I don't see how he could have, but he must have," sobbed Mrs. Redeye.

"It is dreadful, simply dreadful," said Mrs. Chippy the Chipping Sparrow, and all the neighbors agreed.

The next story: "Another Accident?"

RAYS CUT

CHICAGO —(INS)— Ultra-violet lighting in schools is being used to reduce disease among children of Pleasantville, N. Y., reports the American Municipal Association. Ultra-violet lights that destroy airborne germs were installed experimentally in Pleasantville schools seven months ago. Since that time only 15 cases of measles and chickenpox were contracted in the irradiated schools attended by 1,205 children.

Final Intermediate Swim Classes Scheduled at Pool

Only two more intermediate swimming classes, sponsored by the Richland county Red Cross, will be conducted this summer, Water Safety Chairman Sam Fox announced today.

The current class, which started Monday, will be conducted daily between 10 a. m. and 12 noon until Friday, and the final class has been scheduled for Aug. 12-16 at Liberty park pool. Approximately 130 students will be enrolled in the two classes.

Covered during lessons will be floating, sculling, treading water, underwater swimming, plain diving and rescue skills as well as various swimming strokes.

In order to successfully complete the course and pass the final test, students will be required to swim 50 yards continuously using elementary back stroke, and to swim 100 yards continuously demonstrating the other strokes taught.

Instructors for the two remaining courses are Ilene Hoffman, Irene Hoffman, Paul Snyder and Fred Bardsley. Assistants include Janet and Barbara Bertoch, Frank Lane, Jack Dickson, Chloe Snyder, William Wells, Carol Goettinger, Arthur Schmidt, Betty Morey, Fred Morey, Ruth Sheriff, Warren Worthley, Buddy Sorenson and Ruth Augsburger.

At Cedar Point

Alvino Rey, inventor of the electric guitar and leader-guitarist of his well-known orchestra, will appear at the Grand Ballroom at Cedar Point-on-Lake Erie from Friday, Aug. 9 through Thursday, Aug. 15. The redesigned orchestra, incorporating a twin brass section and a harp, also features vocalist J Anne Ryan and the Airliners vocal ensemble.

Rhododendrons Repay for Summer Care

At this time of the year the requirements of rhododendrons are often overlooked. This is a mistake for. this popular evergreen shrub will repay for proper summer care given to it.

But in your eagerness to do something for rhododendrons don't make the mistake of cultivating around. Their roots stay close to the surface of the soil, and cultivating is apt to injure them.

To keep the weeds from flourishing under a planting of rhododendrons, mulch with a four-inch covering of oak leaves (if you can get them) or some other acid-type mulching material. This type of mulch also serves to preserve the moisture in the soil and keeps the roots of the plants cool. It should be kept on as a year around soil covering, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

It is also a good precaution to remove the rhododendron flowers after they have faded and shriveled, and before the seed pods are fully formed, as illustrated. Do this with a pair of scissors so as not to injure the new shoots then forming, as illustrated.

Rhododendrons prefer an acid soil. If your soil proves by test to be alkaline it can be changed to acid by treating with aluminum sulphate, flowers of sulfur or tannic acid.

If in good health, rhododendrons do not require pruning. Frequently they do need disbudding to prevent their "blooming themselves to death." This is especially true of the hybrid types.

Rhododendrons should be transplanted in very early spring before growth begins or in August and September.

WESTBROOK PEGLER . . .

NEW YORK—The reason I have paid so much attention to the American Veterans' committee, a new outfit operating out of a New York headquarters, is that I think it has enjoyed an unfair advantage in slanted news coverage by writers who are intellectually dishonest and sling the terms "Liberal" and "Progressive" into their pieces to promote measures which are dangerous or, anyway, unwise.

Let us forget about communism. The Communists are now pals with the Peron government of Argentina, just as they were with Hitler when it suited their purpose so to be. The AVC urges "continued opposition to the Argentine government" as a "potential threat to world peace" so here it disagrees with Moscow.

I recognize its right to take their position, but I say it is bad manners and dangerous business for us to "oppose" the government of any other country. If we do that, we have no right to complain against the interference of the world communist in our internal affairs. Possibly all veterans want to subscribe to that but if not, those who don't should know that this is one of the things that the AVC stands for.

The young fellows that I met at headquarters, Charles Bolte, Gil Harrison and Edward McHale, are smart and full of ideas and busting with energy. Building up the AVC is a job and I might say a competitive game with them, the principal competitior among the new outfits being the American Veterans of World War II or Amvets.

The AVC are now trying to raise a million dollars to spend on organizing but I doubt that they will get all that and I think their publicity is out of proportion to their strength inasmuch as they have only 60,000 members to date, notwithstanding their clamor.

Let us pick some items out of the AVC's platform. They say the last vestiges of Fascism should be destroyed in Germany and Japan and that they should be "deindustrialized," one of the most jargon jaw breakers that fill the e , these days.

* * *

Well, I am sorry, but it is inconsistent to holler for freedom of conscience and belief and then say we have got to eradicate the political beliefs of others because we disagree with them and I say that the harsher the methods we use the greater the resistance will be in the subjects.

* * *

Then, too, I detect in their own program proposals which seem to me to be Fascist, such as the one providing $25 a week for 26 weeks for anyone who is out of a job because he refuses to cross a picket line. Nobody is entitled to six months a year off at the expense of people who keep on working and paying taxes, but even if you do agree that people who are actually out of work for no fault of their own deserve a dole are you going to invite all the unioneers to pull strikes off-hand and throw millions onto the relief rolls?

Any Communist or underworld thug, such as Joe Fay in New York, can call a strike at will and send pickets to a plant whose presence would make a couple of thousand workers eligible for $25 a week. In no time, the Communists could tie us in knots.

Anybody who can give $25 a week to X millions of Americans who want to go to the ball-games or take little side-jobs while they are "unemployed" can build up a powerful following with the public's money, as long as it lasts. I don't know whether these kids even know that there is no real legal definition of a strike.

The young men thought I did them wrong recently in reporting that they had adopted a slippery resolution purporting to reject a bonus a little later. The resolution that I thought was adopted really was rejected but I think the fault was at least as much theirs as mine because it was slugged "addendum to platform" in their bulletin. The head said, "defeated bonus proposal" and I construed the word "defeated" as a verb whereas they meant it as an adjective. Anyway, I readily promised to make it clear that the resolution was not adopted.

They came on with a rush in a great flurry of propaganda but they have only one organizer in the field now and, from now on, I believe they will have to see their program strictly on its merits which is all right with them. I am sure, because they want intelligent and critical members. Other intelligent and critical veterans, naturally, will want nothing to do with most of their program.

HAL BOYLE . . .

By RUSSELL BRINES
(For Hal Boyle)

TOKYO—(AP)—Toyiko Kagawa, 58-year-old Christian minister, is probably the most active Japanese of the occupation—vigorously pushing plans ranging from a great Christian revival throughout Japan to solving food shortages.

Imparial observers say the energetic little man retains great influence although some of his wartime speeches were considered abroad as jingoistic.

Early in the occupation he told me in an interview that he hated the word "defeat" because "I am a Japanese."

Intimates say Kagawa's dominant interest at the moment is his three-year "all Japan Christian evangelist campaign" which began Sept. 6 as a nation-wide attempt to spread christianity.

Kagawa currently is touring the country giving a series of christian lectures including a special christian service in Tokyo.

He also is working to restore an estimated 500 christian churches which were burned out during the war.

S.multaneously, he is furthering his long-held dream for a series of co-operatives directly linking producer and consumer which he says is the only method of insuring adequate food for Japan.

* * *

Kagawa holds the position of adviser to the social Democratic party, which he helped to found, and heads the "co-operative unions federation." He recently was appointed a member of the house of peers the second chamber of Japan's diet.

* * *

The welfare ministry a short time ago adopted Kagawa's plan for unemployment insurance, and the Japan educators union recently named him as its chairman despite his protests that he was too old and ill.

He is editor and publisher of the weekly Japan Christian newspaper and is president of the "international peace society" which he also helped to organize.

To handle all these duties, Kagawa maintains a driving schedule, permitting himself only four hours of sleep daily. He has become so lean that intimate associates are concerned over his health.

Friends say Kagawa frequently has praised General MacArthur's policies in private conversations.

"MacArthur's policy is a grand success," he was quoted as saying on one occasion. "Every Japanese should recognize his acts and sincerity and should express full gratitude to the general."

JUDGE GETS ROUGH

PORTSMOUTH —(INS)—Municipal Judge Ralph Stevens of Portsmouth intensified his drive against drunken driving today. Previously, the jail sentence had been for three days.

HEALTH BOARD RAPS HANDLING OF CITY SEWAGE

Calls Emptying of Refuse Into Storm Sewers 'Hazard'; Urges Survey.

The Mansfield board of health last night rapped as a "public health hazard" the fact that sewage is permitted to run into city storm sewers and will recommend to city council elimination of the practice.

Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, said today that in one instance—on Ohio street near Ritter's run—children play in raw sewage which runs out of a storm sewer.

He said that the only way that this and other similar hazards can be eliminated is to make a survey to determine which homes are running sewage lines into storm sewers.

A recommendation to conduct the survey was approved by the health board, the commissioner said. Further recommendations are to be made to have the survey conducted in conjunction with a proposed area-wide sewer program, he said.

The board recommended:

"That Mansfield city council be informed of the existence of public health hazards being caused by sanitary sewage being discharged into storm sewers and that the Mansfield board of health recommends that a survey be made to ascertain the sources of these nuisances."

Dr. Wild said that he believes the survey can best be conducted as part of an over-all sewer improvement program for which preliminary plans have already been mapped.

COUNCIL FACES BUSY SESSION

7 Major Bills Up For Action at Meet Tonight; Housing, Levy OK on Program.

City council tonight faces one of its busiest sessions in months with at least seven major bills up for consideration.

Two of the more important pieces of legislation include those in which council will be asked to set up a $15,000 veterans' housing fund and approve the placing of a two-tenths of a mill recreation levy on the ballot this fall.

The $15,000 housing fund, dropped from an original $25,000, is to be used to provide 75 more temporary housing units for veterans and their families.

The recreation levy is to be for a five-year period and funds from it are to be used to set up a city-wide recreation program with an objective of reducing juvenile delinquency.

Other major items include authorizing the moving of police-fire signal system to expanded quarters; the installation of a new fire alarm conduit and the purchase of 45 new alarm boxes. Other legislation provides for the paving of Abbefeale and Saxton roads and Glenn avenue.

NEARS PORT

Damaged U. S. Merchant Ship Moving Under Own Power.

LONDON — (AP) — The collision damaged U. S. merchant ship American Farmer was making for Falmouth at about eight knots today and was expected to arrive there about 8 p. m. (3 p. m. EST) tomorrow.

The 8,258-ton vessel has a cargo of wheat for bread-rationed Britain. At the end of her voyage she faces a probable legal squabble between British and American companies over $4,500,000 salvage rights.

The American Farmer, owned by the U. S. Lines, was abandoned by her crew after she collided with another American ship Wednesday about 700 miles west of Land's End. The British ship, Elizabete, only a fourth her size, had the crippled ship in tow when a crew from the American Ranger, sister ship of the Farmer, boarded the damaged ship and got it moving under its own power.

Civic Music Sets Dates For Its 11th Season of Concerts

Mansfield Civic Music association will begin its 11th season this fall as a depression baby which turned into a robust adult.

With another line-up of top-notch talent on the agenda for its members' listening, this season's first concert, scheduled for Monday, Nov. 11, will feature the talented pianist, Leon Fleisher. Other artists and dates of their appearances are: the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, Monday, Dec. 2; the National Male quartet, Thursday, Jan. 9, and Selma Kay, noted soprano, Monday, Feb 24.

In 1935 Mansfield and the nation were just beginning to shake off a crippling economic depression. That year, a group of Mansfielders had the courage to start a membership drive for the first Mansfield Civic Music association season.

Currency circulation was tight, consequently memberships came in slowly and laboriously. Campaign chairmen, unlike those of recent years, had a real job on their hands. Because of the initial difficulties in getting the infant on its way, the association could sponsor only three concerts a year because receipts weren't high enough to bring more to the city.

In the ensuing three years, interest in the local music organization grew in proportion with the revived earnings of family breadwinners, until last spring's record membership drive was completed in two hours!

In the total of 120 minutes, chairmen had filled the seating capacity of the John Simpson Junior high auditorium from the lists of former members and from the always-present waiting list.

A few of the stars and ensembles which have appeared for the music association's concerts are, Paul Robson, Marian Anderson, John Charles Thomas, Thomas L. Thomas, Gladys Swarthout, the Minneapolis, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Philadelphia symphony orchestras, most of the outstanding duo piano teams in the country, the Ballet Russe, and the late Argentinita and her dancers

The concerts, formerly held in Senior high school auditorium, were transferred to the John Simpson Junior high auditorium during the war. John Simpson auditorium has been designated by the association's officers as the permanent home for the concerts.

Ouster Suits Still at Peak

Despite the re-birth of OPA, eviction proceedings are still being filed at the rate of one a day in Mansfield's municipal court to match last month's rate when OPA was "dead" for 26 days.

So far this month, five actions have been filed. Last month a record 32 ouster proceedings were started. However, 10 of these were dismissed when OPA was revived because they failed to meet new regulations and two others were dismissed on other grounds.

The balance of 19 were decided in favor of the landlord to give July a record of actual evictions nearly equal to total cases filed in June. One of the cases filed in July is still to be heard.

Roseland residents who have pondered for many years over the question of how the area got its name now have the answer. A story about Roseland which appeared in Sunday's News-Journal stated that even persons living there did not know how the area was named. According to a News-Journal reader, the community became Roseland a number of years ago, when the area was the farm of W. M. Hahn. Hahn, the reader states, had the farm put in his wife's name, whose first name was Rose. From then on, Mansfielders began calling the community Roseland, he said.

It seems that the hedge cut off the sun from the garden. However, she claims that when she returned she found the hedge had been "trimmed"—but good! The neighbor, she says, dug up the hedge and promptly burned it! Police told her that if the neighbor doesn't make good a promise to pay for the hedge she can file charges with the city solicitor.

TRUMAN EDICT MAKES CUT OF $700,000,000

Moratorium on Construction Won't Affect Contracts Already Awarded.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government's $1,600,000,000 public works program ground to a virtual halt today.

Federal agencies — under presidential edict—set about choosing $700,000,000 worth of construction to defer at least until spring.

Calling the step necessary to "comply with the president's anti-inflation budget," Reconversion Director John R. Steelman yesterday clamped on a three-way moratorium that:

1. Prevents any agency from letting contracts for any new construction during the next 56 days without his express permission:

2. Provides that either Civilian Production Administrator John D. Small or Housing Expediter Wilson W. Wyatt must recommend, and the reconversion director approve, non-deferrable federal construction to be started between Oct. 1, 1946 and April 1, 1947, and

3. Requires the agencies to put on the deferred list at least $700,000,000 worth of construction, some of which may be eliminated entirely.

An official familiar with the moratorium plans told a reporter the search for deferrable projects most likely will turn first to such military construction as warehouses and officers' clubs, some airports, and certain agricultural conservation and reclamation projects.

Another official predicted that careful study also will be given to flood control projects and to public highways.

The reconversion director made it clear that the moratorium does not affect contracts already awarded or funds which have been committed for work schedules to start before October 1

Gorman-Rupp, Humphryes Win District Tourney Games

Hal Clawson

Tomorrow afternoon out on Marion avenue the Lions club will stage its first amateur stock bicycle race.

And maybe this writer can offer some friendly advice to the young peddlers. It definitely won't be "expert" advice, however, as you will see.

About 11 years ago I made my first and last appearance as an amateur bike racer. Occasion was the half-mile race at the Ashland county fair.

I had spent a week or so taking my bike all apart, greasing all the parts and getting everything in proper working condition.

In order to make it lighter both fenders were removed. The handle bars were also turned down and a new tire was bought.

Riding out to the fairgrounds from Ashland was a pretty good jaunt since it was all up hill.

About 25 bikes were entered in the race, as I recall, with all of them being regular stock bikes except two. Although ridden by amaturs, these two were regular racing bikes.

When the race started, I can vividly remember starting out like I was going to a fire. I must have been ten yards out in front before the others had even gone a yard.

* * *

I can still remember some of my friends yelling for me as I kept right on going. But soon some of the racers who I left at the post were beginning to creep up on me. One by one I was passed.

At the end of the first lap I was better than halfway back. But the finish was the thing.

Coming down the home stretch it was a neck and neck battle—for last place—between another fellow and myself. The other fellow won.

So my advice is don't do what I did if you want to win.

This corner is wondering just how many people would have turned out for the Cleveland-New York game Sunday afternoon under the old management.

Certainly that record-smashing 75,000 mark which was set Sunday must have been a vote of confidence on the part of the fans of Cleveland toward Bill Veeck and the new owners.

Although many of them were there to see Bob Feller pitch, I don't believe he was the complete drawing power Sunday.

* * *

It would be better to say that the fans like the type of baseball as showman Veeck presents the national pastime.

* * *

But since there was no fireworks Sunday, it must have been baseball that the folks wanted to see.

Tee Off In Ohio Open

Schute and Burke Are Early Favorites.

PORTSMOUTH — A field of 130 tees off here today in quest of the Ohio Open golf championship with the boys who make their living playing the pitch and putt game definitely favored to bring home the bunting.

No less than four former Ohio Open champs now gleaning a living from the art of teaching golf are in the field of today's opening round.

These include Al Alcroft of Youngstown, the 1926-27 winner; Jack Thompson of Youngstown, the 1938 champ; Denny Shute of Akron, the 1929-1930 and '31 title holder; the defending champion Billy Burke, of Cleveland, who grabbed the honors in 1938 and '39 and repeated again last year.

Despite the host of former champs on hand, Shute stood out today as the man to beat. In a pro amateur tuneup yesterday, he fired a five under par 67 to lead his combine to top honors in a pre tourney warmup.

* * *

He teamed with a local amateur, E. L. Nice, who shot 82 but whose 13 stroke handicap gave him and Denny a 60 total for the 36 holes. Then too, Shute won an invitation over this same course last year.

* * *

Second in yesterday's warmup competition was a pair of teams, Joseph Lucius of Tiffin and Larry Loft of Portsmouth and Al Alcroft and Dr. A. L. Berndt, Portsmouth. These two runner up combines turned in 36 hole totals of 63, handicaps included.

Today's schedule sends the field through 36 holes of competition over the Elks Country club's 6,746 yard par 72 course in quest of the Open title.

Leading the hope of amateur club swingers is Maurice McCarthy, Cincinnati amateur who won the Ohio Open crown in 1944. Another prime contender is Bob Kepler, Ohio State university links coach who won the state amateur crown in 1931.

Park Leaders Play 5-5 Tie

Liberty and North Lake softball teams were still in the "dark" today over which is going to rule the Park league.

Last night they battled to a 5-5 tie when the game was called at the end of the seventh on account of darkness. Both have a chance to cop the loop crown.

In the lone tilt played, Johns defeated Prospect, 14-6, at Johns with Schwarz hurling a four-hitter for the winners.

Holly homered for the losers while Crawford and Gagich each had a double for Johns.

Three 68s Pace Western Open

DULUTH, Minn. —(AP)— Potential champions were about as thick as iron ore boats on Lake Superior today as the 44th Western Amateur golf tournament went into its second day of qualifying with the field paced by a trio of 68s fired in the opening round yesterday.

Any number of favorites to win the title could be found, but George Victor of Chicago, Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, and Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., were the prime candidates.

WOUNDED MOUND STAR

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(AP)— Bespectacled Bob Gehrett, of Lewiston, Pa., who sustained an arm wound in the war, was unbeaten on the mound at Penn State this season.

35 Players Attend Chicago Cubs Tryout Camp Here

Scouts Tony Lucadello and Jimmy Milgoff tell the boys about the weight of their bats.

"The best tryout camp we've held anywhere this year."

That was the way Chicago Cub Scouts Tony Lucadello and Jim Milgoff summed up yesterday's activities out at Liberty park.

A second session was scheduled for today from 10 this morning until two this afternoon providing the weather permitted.

Thirty-five boys—some coming from such distant points as Springfield, Dayton, Warren, Rittman, Mt. Vernon and many other cities in this area were on hand.

Although the scouts didn't commit themselves, they were mighty pleased with some of the talent they saw here. "The boys are larger than some we have worked with in the past," Lucadello stated following yesterday's inter-squad game.

The Cubs hope to come in next summer with a school so that younger players can be given instructions, etc.

Mansfield boys who worked out were Leroy Floro, Thurman Foster, Jim Regula, Jake Gaubatz, Jim Robertson, Bob Glasscock, Ed Woodberry and Dave Hollinsworth.

Almost Hurls Double Win

(By Associated Press)

Virgil Feeney of the Lima Terrors is one of those pitchers who says he ordinarily needs a lot of rest between games, but when he's in form he "likes to keep pitching."

Feeney felt "right" last night after he defeated the Dayton Indians, 4 to 2, so he asked and was allowed to hurl the nightcap. He did all right—until the last inning. With the score tied, the Indians spoiled the stunt by pushing across one run for a 5 to 4 win.

At the top of the Ohio State league standings, the gap between first and second place was narrowed last night when the lead ing Springfield Giants dropped a game to Marion, 4 to 2, while Zanesville was winning over Middletown, 8 to 5, with two four-run inning splurges.

Newark's game at Richmond was rained out.

Eagles Take Lead In Shelby Loop

SHELBY—The Eagles took the lead in the Shelby softball league by defeating the American Legion, 4 to 2, Monday night on the waterworks diamond. It was the fifth win out of six games for the Eagles.

Taking a 1 to 0 lead in the second inning, the Eagles scored another run in the third. The Legion tied up the game in the fourth inning, 2 to 2, but the Eagles pushed a run across home plate in the fifth and sixth.

Eddie Griffith gave eight hits to the Legion, while Jacque Reynolds, Legion pitcher, gave seven.

The schedule has been revised for the week to allow the Laubie's Shell Filling station team to enter the state tournament at Marion this week. The schedule includes, tonight, CIO-Steelworkers vs. Saleshook: Wednesday, Eagles vs. Laubies and Thursday, Laubies vs. Depot.

Mickey Owen Reported Back To Seek Reinstatement In OB

BOSTON —(AP)— Mickey Owen, who left a first string catching job with the Brooklyn Dodgers last April to play in the Mexican league, was reported back in the United States today, ready to return to his old post at Ebbets field —if organized baseball will have him.

Branch Rickey, Dodgers president who said his information came from a mutual friend, disclosed that Owen had deserted the Vera Cruz club in the Mexican circuit, had arrived in Brownsville, Tex., and would seek reinstatement in the National league.

Owen himself could not be found up to an early hour today, but it was learned here that the catcher was en route to his home at Springfield, Mo., and planned to appear personally before Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler to ask his reinstatement.

Chandler, informed of the report at his Versailles, Ky., home, said he had "no comment."

Rickey said he "would intercede with Commissioner Chandler in Owen's behalf."

* * *

"My friendship for Owen goes back nine years," the Dodger chieftain pointed out. "If there is anything I can do, I'll be glad to do it."

Asked if he would take Mickey back into the Dodger fold, Rickey answered:

"That's something I can't discuss now. It's up to Commissioner Chandler to rule on his case first."

Chandler, at the time Jorge Pasquel and his four brothers were recruiting U. S. players for their Mexican league, stated that players who jumped south of the border could not be reinstated for five years.

Manager Leo Durocher, as surprised as anyone over the latest development, was asked if he would like to get Owen back. Said Leo:

"Personally, and as a player, I would be glad to see him with the Dodgers again. But it's up to Mr. Rickey and Commissioner Chandler."

At Mexico City yesterday Gerardo Pasquel expressed "complete surprise" at the report that he had jumped back to the United States.

Luis Olmo, formerly with the Dodgers, and Danny Gardella, ex-New York Giant player, who have been Owen's teammates at Vera Cruz, said he was not at his apartment when they stopped by to pick him up.

Braves Again Dodger Victim; Increase Lead to 2½ Games

By RALPH RODEN, AP Sports Writer.

Brooklyn's ability to defeat the Boston Braves and the Philadelphia Phillies with almost monotonous regularity and Manager Leo Durocher's knack of yanking a faltering moundsman at the right time are two prime reasons why the Dodgers hold first place in the National league.

With 101 games under their belt, the Brooks enjoy a 2½ game margin over the second place St. Louis Cardinals, but only 33 complete games have been turned in by the Dodger hurling crew with 26 of the route-going jobs resulting in victories.

In the other 68 Dodger contests, Durocher employed 201 hurlers in bagging 36 victories and suffering 32 setbacks. Little Vic Lombardi leads the Dodger hurlers in turning in complete games, with 11 to his credit.

* * *

The Dodgers pulled another game out of the fire last night as they trimmed the Braves, 7-4, before a total paid attendance of 41,645, the largest at Braves field in more than 13 years.

* * *

Trailing 3-1 at the end of the fourth frame, the Dodgers surged ahead in the fifth by scoring five runs on a three-run homer by Pee Wee Reese and a two-run circuit clout by Dixie Walker.

Rookie Southpaw Joe Hatten started for the Dodgers but lasted less than three innings as the Braves piled up a 3-1 lead. Hank Behrman and Ralph Branca finished up, allowing only one run with Branca receiving credit for the win.

Mort Cooper began for Boston and held the league-leaders to one hit until he blew up in the fifth.

In an exhibition contest at New York, the Giants dropped a 3-2 decision to the New York Yankees and also lost the services of Johnny Mize, the senior loop's top home run hitter, for two to three weeks. Mize, who has 22 four-baggers to his credit, suffered a fractured right hand when struck by a pitched ball by Joe Page in the first inning.

Casting Entries Must Be In By Wednesday

All entries for the casting contest Sunday afternoon at Liberty park must be in at the Chamber of Commerce by tomorrow.

The casting contest will be part of the water show being sponsored here jointly by the C. of C. and the local Red Cross.

Richard Moulton, will be here to give some exhibitions along with the contests for the local casters.

Casters will shoot at five targets of 30 inches diameters. Shortest target will be 40 feet and the longest will be 80 feet.

Scoring for the casting contest will be based upon 100 points.

Gromek Will Hurl Tonight

CHICAGO —(AP)— Cleveland's Indians, who have moved within two games of the fourth place Washington Nationals, open a four-game series with the Chicago White Sox here tonight.

Steve Gromek, who won 19 games for the Tribe last season, again will attempt to shake the jinx which has had him stymied since early season. Gromek has won only 4 games this year while dropping 10. Ed Lopat will hurl for the White Sox.

The Indians will shift to St. Louis for a four-game series later in the week and will return home Monday to open a series with the Detroit Tigers.

National Skeet Firing Opens

INDIANAPOLIS —(AP)— Skeet, badly crippled during the war, will leap back into its old place in the sports parade tomorrow as the first annual international and the ninth national championships open at the Capitol City Gun club for a five day stand.

Advance entries today assured a record field of at least 400 shooters, the tournament committee said.

Most of the country's better skeeters are entered in the championships, which include competition in junior, sub-junior, ladies, and two and five-man team events.

CARTER FANS 16

Bob Carter, pitcher for the American Legion Post 72 baseball club, hurled seven innings against Skeeter's Sohio nine last Sunday and didn't permit a safe blow and struck out 16 in suffering a 2-1 loss. An error in centerfield permitted Skeeter's to score their winning run.

NAMED AT KENYON

BAMBIER —(AP)— Dave Henderson, who once starred in the backfield for Wooster college grid fans, will be Kenyon college's head football coach and associate athletic director, the school announced. He fills the vacancy left by R. J. Kutler, resigned.

Two 'Whities' May See Red

They'll be two "whities" in action on Thursday night's outdoor wrestling show at the Armory arena—but they may be seeing red before the night is over.

Whitey Walberg, the 190 pound terror, faces Whitey "Adolph" Whitler in one of half-hour one fall bouts preliminary to the tag-team bout.

Stacy Hall, the Columbus cop, returns to the local scene after an absence of several weeks to meet Jack Vansky in a half-hour scrap.

Walberg and Hall will team up to tangle with Vansky and Whitler in the tag event which is set for two out of three falls with a one hour time limit.

Golf Champs Play For World Title

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—(AP)— Herman Barron, recent winner of $10,500 for his victory in the All-American Open, and Lloyd Mangrum, Texan who won the U. S. Open championship, today agreed to compete with Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va., British Open ruler, for the world's golf championship at George S. May's Tam O'Shanter course in Chicago, Sept. 7-8.

A fourth golfer, said May, will be the victor in the P.G.A. tournament at Portland, Ore., Aug. 19-25.

The world's championship will be a $10,000 winner-take-all event of 36 holes, 18 on each day. In the event of a tie a play-off will be held on Monday, Sept. 9.

Geiger, McKinley Hurl Good Games

Shell Oil, Safety Cabs Scheduled to Play Tonight If Rain Quits.

MARION—Two Mansfield softball teams and a Mt. Vernon entry gained wins here last night in the opening set of games in the sixth district softball tournament at Smitty's park.

Behind the four-hit pitching of Aid Geiger, Gorman-Rupp romped to a 9-1 victory over Schlariet Transfer of Marion.

The visiting team slapped out 10 hits off Coxey Weiss, scoring two runs in the initial frame, shoved over three more in the fourth and finished off with two in the sixth and two in the seventh.

Ross, G-R right fielder, led the Mansfield club with three hits out of four trips to the plate. Herrick had two for three.

In the third game last night Humphryes of Mansfield gained a 6-3 victory over Baldridge Tire of Upper Sandusky.

Dale McKinley hurled five-hit ball for the winners.

Friend, Humphryes catcher, had a perfect night at the plate with three for three.

Best game of the night saw Stone's Grill of Mt. Vernon edge Ashland VFW in 11 innings, 2-1.

* * *

The game was finished under protest, however, with the Ashland nine doing the protesting over a decision of an umpire.

It will be ruled on today.

Tommy Wise, young VFW hurler, and Mills hooked up in a mound duel. Wise fanned 13 batters and Mills three.

Jack Hurst was hit by a pitched ball, was sacrificed to second, and scored on Martin's single over second for the Ashlanders' lone run in the fourth.

In the last of the seventh, Shuff singled through short, was sacrificed to second, went to third on a passed ball and scored on an infield out.

McKlay doubled to right in the eleventh and scored on Leonard's single.

Tonight's games may be postponed if rain continues.

Shell Oil of Mansfield is scheduled to meet Smith and Wilson, Carey meets Laubies of Shelby and Safety Cabs of Mansfield play the Ashland Independents.

Baseball One Happy Family

NEW YORK —(AP)— Baseball is one happy family today with the major leagues' policy committee reporting "agreement in principle" between players and owners on proposed contract reforms.

Not that any disagreement had been expected. It was pretty much of a cut and dried proposition that the players would get substantially what they wanted.

* * *

The diamond social revolution, mild in form, will cost the magnates more money in 1947. But in the long run, if the improved owner-player relations can snap the union threat and end the Mexican raids, the magnates will consider it cash well spent.

* * *

High on the light of matters discussed at yesterday's parley between the six-man policy committee, representing the owners, and the six-man player group was a minimum wage. The National league athletes had asked for $5,500.

The owners believed it would be better to keep secret the exact details of their agreements until the Aug. 27 meetings in Chicago.

Buggy-Whip Veterans to Pilot Hambletonian Favorites

By SID FEDER

GOSHEN, N. Y. — (AP) — The horses have to do all the running to win the big pot at Good Time track tomorrow, but when the boys sit down to chin over this 21st Hambletonian most of the talk centers on four men, and the horses come second in the chatter.

While all the horses in the expected field of between 12 and 20 are young fellows and girls, only three years old a-piece, these four gentlemen are old timers who've been around long enough to know most of the answers. Reading from left to right, they are Tom Berry, Sep Palin, Harry Pownall and Ben White. The rail birds sitting around waiting for tomorrow's big three-heat buggywhip derby vow that these four know horses so well they even talk to the horses in their own language.

Each has driven at least one Hambletonian winner down through the years since trotters had their first world series back in 1926. White, the 73-year-old dean of the sulky riders, has steered four steppers home first in this classic.

* * *

Every one of the four likely will be sitting in a sulky behind one of the favorites before an expected crowd of 25,000 to 30,000 tomorrow in a Hambletonian that promises to have a $28,000 pay check for the winner.

* * *

Berry, the one-time English running horse jockey who turned to the trotters when the runners complained about his increasing weight, was named today to handle Chestertown, bought last week for $40,000 by Walter E. Smith of Los Angeles.

Chestertown is the Hambletonian choice after winning three straight in Maine, but right up close to him are Deanna, champion two-year-old of last year; Victory Song, full brother to the 1943 winner, Volo Song and Walter Spencer, stablemate of last year's champion, Titan Hanover.

Each of these will have another of these old time aces doing the piloting. Victory Song, a disappointment last year, will be handled by Palin, the Indianapolis veteran who piloted the great Greyhound back in '35. Walter Spencer will be driven by Harry Pownall, who was in the sulky behind the Titan a year ago.

State Warns Cities To Tighten Their Liquor Law Enforcement

Mansfield, along with other Ohio municipalities, was warned today that laxness in enforcement of liquor laws may mean the withholding of permit fees from the subdivisions.

The warning came in a stern letter from Mrs. Maude McQuate, chairman of the state board of liquor control, to mayors of Ohio cities.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said that Mansfield's liquor law enforcement is on a par with any other Ohio city and said that he's "satisfied" with local enforcement.

He added, however, that he is turning the letter received by him from Mrs. McQuate over to Police Chief Meade K. Bates "for his information."

More than $6,000,000 in fees were returned to approximately 1,200 municipalities and taxing divisions last year under the laws of the liquor control act. Already $4,511,001 has been disbursed this year.

Mrs. McQuate hurled the following challenge at the mayors:

"What is wrong with the building inspectors? Where is the policeman on the beat. They are the ones to hault the flagrant violations, not the 130 department enforcement inspectors spread thinly over the state."

"Perhaps the laws will be more closely watched if they know that their permit fees might be withheld," she said.

The chairman added that the letter "is not to be considered a direct accusation as to your particular community but to bring to your attention the realization that the public is gravely concerned with general enforcement of the laws."

Lightning Starts Oil Tanker Fire

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—(U.P.)—Billowing smoke and angry flames seething below decks today concealed the rate of at least three men missing since lightning ignited the 5,000,000 gallon fuel cargo of an oil tanker here yesterday.

Ship officers said two crew members and an elderly dock guard had not been accounted for since an electrical blast transformed the Standard Oil vessel Homestead into an exploding inferno as she lay anchored in the port of Jacksonville.

NINE CRAWFORD RURAL SCHOOLS TO ASK LEVIES

Three to Seek Increases in November to Meet Rising Costs.

BUCYRUS—Nine of the rural schools in Crawford county will ask renewals of existing school tax levies or additional new levies to meet the rise in operating expenses at the November election, a check of schools districts revealed today.

Levies will be placed before voters in Bucyrus city, Tiro, North Robinson, Sulphur Springs, Holmes Liberty, Chatfield, Whetstone and Bucyrus rural school districts. New Washington will ask approval of a four-mill levy replacing a two-mill levy which expired in 1945. Whetstone and Bucyrus city also are to ask increased levies.

Seventeen teachers are still needed to complete the staff in county rural schools before the opening of the fall term, Supt. Milton Harman said. Vacancies exist in both the elementary and high schools.

Recently employed was Eugene Rayle, 28, superintendent at Lykens, who will come here from Columbus Grove where he was coach and science teacher. Thirty-four resignations have been received in the close of the year in June.

Wins and Loses

The Lord Privy Council in London has ruled that Ramendra Marayan Roy (above) did not die and was not cremated in 1909 and that he is entitled to the $400,000 income and title of Rajah of Bhowal, India. The Rajah had declared a rainstorm quenched the fire and that he had wandered for twelve years a victim of amnesia. His wife, since remarried, had insisted he was an imposter. His triumph was short-lived however as recent reports indicate that he died soon after the ruling was made in his favor.

PROFIT TAKING PUSHES STOCK PRICES LOWER

Motors, Steels Take Lead in Market Dip; Some Favorites Resist Down Trend.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Steels and motors led the stock market into lower average territory today although a few favorites managed to contest the move with some success.

Profits again were cashed on the recent lengthy recovery with the idea that the list may have become a bit exhausted and was due for an intermediate reaction. Dividends and earnings still were bullish.

Prominent on the offside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Deere, American News, Electric Power & Light, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, American Water Works, Air Reduction, National Distillers, Allied Chemical, Anaconda and U. S. Gypsum. Higher tendencies were shown for Paramount Pictures, American Woolen and Texas Co.

Humorous Echo From Port Dedication

Echoes of the airport dedication! Tony Pecora, mechanic aboard the Air Transport corporation's Sky-Van which brought the first freight into the port, was to be introduced by H. Roy Penzell, president of ACT, to Governor Lausche. But Pecora got mixed up and said "How do you do, governor," to Mansfield's J. H. Ashbaugh, vice president to Westinghouse. Shown above, as the matter was being genially straightened out, are, left to right, Penzell, Governor Lausche, Pecora and Ashbaugh.

BYRNES DUELS WITH MOLOTOV

Russian, American Delegates to Peace Conference Hurl Charges, Denials.

PARIS —(AP)— Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov clashed on the floor of the Paris peace conference rules committee today, Byrnes charging the Russian with seeking dictation to the conference through the Big Four and Molotov replying that the Big Four was an American idea.

Byrnes, replying to the Russian's charges of inconsistency, read copiously from "the record" and challenged Molotov to see that the United States delegate's remarks were published in the Soviet Union.

Molotov repeated his charges of inconsistency. He said Byrnes was speaking "in a serious and angry tone" and declared "we, almost alone, have to defend the agreed decisions" of the foreign ministers of the four principal powers, Russia, Britain, France and the United States.

Accepts Challenge.

He accepted Byrnes' challenge to have the secretary of state's remarks published in the Russian press.

The exchange took place in the second week of arguments as to whether the committee will recommend a rule that a simple majority or two-thirds majority vote will be required for the full conference to pass treaty recommendations on to the foreign ministers' council of four for final action.

The American delegate also challenged the accuracy of Molotov's statement before the peace conference rules committee yesterday, when he accused Byrnes of inconsistency for supporting a proposal by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada that the foreign ministers' council meet concurrently with the conference to speed the writing of peace treaties for five beaten countries.

Byrnes Interrupts.

Interrupting debate in the rules committee on the hotly-argued two-thirds rules, Byrnes declared:

"In the United States we have a free press. Therefore the Soviet representative can be sure his attack against me has been published in the United States. I challenge him to see that my following statement is also published in the press of the Soviet Union.

"When the Soviet had its back to the wall, the United States promised aid and we came to their aid. We have only admiration and respect for the people of the Soviet Union. And we won't let that admiration and respect be changed by any attacks by Mr. Molotov."

Molotov's interpreter, N. V. Pavlov, followed the secretary's address closely, leaning toward the speaker and straining to hear, then bending over Molotov at intervals to whisper snatches of the address.

Molotov, seated only six seats away from Byrnes, scarcely changed expression throughout the American's speech.

Byrnes declared that ever since Potsdam the Soviet Union had sought to restrict the participants in the Paris conference to the "smallest possible number" and that Molotov had attempted to have the foreign ministers' council dictate to the conference. He added:

"Since the conference convened I have not uttered one word in criticism of the position taken by the representative of the Soviet Union. At no time have I questioned his motives."

He said he was "surprised" when Molotov injected into the argument over the two-thirds rule remarks concerning Byrnes' approval of the proposal by W. L. Mackenzie King, Canadian prime minister, for a concurrent Big Four session to speed the job of drafting treaties for five defeated European countries.

Molotov had said he was surprised when Byrnes approved the Canadian suggestion because he had made the same proposal and Byrnes had not approved.

"Molotov said on July 30 that he suggested to the American delegate and other delegates that they meet," Byrnes continued. "He said the American delegate said there was no need for such meeting. He said yesterday that if I now approved his proposal it made him happy.

"The Soviet delegate knows that this is not in accord with the facts."

tory to making a turn when he heard the child scream.

Besides the possible skull fracture, the Roush girl received multiple lacerations and contusions and her clothing was covered with grease, evidently from the underside of the truck, officers reported.

Car Overturns.

Mrs. Davis was injured when her husband's auto went out of control on the Ashland hill, ran over the curb, struck a steep bank and upset, state highway patrolmen reported. Davis himself and two other passengers, Misses Cecil Davis, 26, and Dorothea Holmes, 22, both of Newark, N. J., were uninjured.

Suffering fractured ribs in a freak accident was Capt. Frank A. Merrigold, 26, army officer of Cleveland whose army auto upset on U. S. Route 42 a mile west of Ashland at 9 a. m. today.

State patrolmen said Capt. Merrigold reported he lost control of his car which went into a roadside ditch, nosed up onto its front end and then fell over on its top where it spun around.

The officer was thrown clear of the auto, as was his pet dog which disappeared after the mishap, patrolmen reported. Capt. Merrigold was treated by a Mansfield physician.

Also treated at General hospital and released were John Wells, 23, of 123 East Dickson avenue, whose finger was caught in a press at the Westinghouse plant and Ronald Tipul, 9, of 114 Raymond avenue, who was bitten on the right leg by a dog.

The Ashland county sheriff's department reported the collision on Route 250 this morning occurred after one auto, bearing California license plates, skidded on wet pavement, and struck a steel bridge over the Muddy Fork and rammed head-on into an auto bearing Pennsylvania license tags.

The seven persons were taken to Ashland's Samaritan hospital.

W. T. Huntsman, Darlington Native, Buried In Toledo

Funeral services were held in Toledo today for Wellington T. Huntsman, 83, a native of Darlington, Richland county, who gained prominence in business and political circles in Lucas county. He died Sunday.

Mr. Huntsman was born Feb. 22, 1864, on a farm near Darlington which had been settled in the early 1800's by his pioneer grandparents from Pennsylvania.

Until the age of 17, he attended a red brick schoolhouse on the farm which is still known as the Huntsman school.

He began his long political career in 1898 when he became chief deputy in the Toledo auditor's office.

At various times he served as county clerk, state examiner of municipal accounts, and clerk of courts. He was secretary-treasurer of the Continental Trust and Savings bank, Toledo, at one time, and in 1921 was appointed postmaster of Toledo, a position he held for eight years.

Mr. Huntsman is survived by one sister, Mrs. Robert Smith of Mansfield, and several nieces and nephews.

Four persons were fined a total of $190 and costs today in municipal court and another was given a 30-day county jail sentence.

A $100 fine levied against a West Virginia woman on an intoxication charge was suspended on condition that she reports for treatment at a tuberculosis sanatorium in that state.

The court also suspended a 30-day jail sentence against James Cervinski, Harding road. He was accused of assault and battery by his wife, Beverly.

Held on $500 bond was Leon J. Fraas, of Lexington, charged with petit larceny by Joseph Blahnik, manager of the Montgomery Ward company store here. Blahnik charged that Fraas stole a jacket from the store yesterday. Fraas' case was continued until tomorrow.

Fined $75 and costs on a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol was R. A. Huffman, of 136 East First street. He pleaded guilty and his license was suspended for six months. Police said his car was involved in a three-car accident early today at First street and Franklin avenue.

Robert E. Cline, of Ganges, was fined $10 and costs and his license was suspended for 30 days when he was found guilty of a charge of unsafe operation of a motor vehicle.

Mary Ellen Csordas, Mansfield R. D. 4, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of crossing a yellow line. The charge was filed by state highway patrolmen.

NEW 'GOLD'

Professor Sees Uranium as Basis For Money System.

CHICAGO—(UP)—The development of atomic energy may lead to a new and more stable monetary system, based on uranium instead of gold, according to Prof. Farrington Daniels of the University of Chicago.

Daniels, director of the university's metallurgical laboratory, says that a given quantity of uranium or plutonium, obtained from uranium, is equivalent to a definite number of kilowatt hours of energy having a potential value in the world's economy comparatively free from price fluctuations.

"On that basis," he says, "a new monetary standard might be substituted for gold."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, AUGUST 6, 1946

Cantaloupes wouldn't be so expensive if it weren't for having to buy so many in order to find one that's fit to eat.

Now we have a "decontrol" board—and it has always seemed much easier to decontrol prices than to control them.

A Washington correspondent describes "the average member of congress" as "confused about the effect of his lawmaking on the voter"—and the sentence might as well have ended with the word, "confused."

Mansfield Financing Wins Praise

MANSFIELDERS may well feel gratified over their city's financial standing, shown in the Associated Press survey of conditions in Ohio cities.

Writer Ken Davis used the word "outstanding" in referring to Mansfield's low bonded debt and its ability to go through the 1946 fiscal year with a surplus instead of a deficit, as many other cities will.

Full credit should be given members of city council, present and past. The city's financial legislation is in their hands now, and it was their foresight over past years which has made such good financial standing a reality.

Credit, too, should go to City Auditor Paul Kelley who has kept himself fully abreast of city financing and who has been prompt and clear with his advice when it was sought. Kelley is a veteran city official and his long experience has added to his value.

To Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, and former mayors, William J. Locke and Claude M. Hunter should go recognition for not attempting to lead their administrations into careless spending for political purposes.

New vigilance, in these times of inflation, will be needed to keep the city in its sound financial condition. Costs of city administration are bound to rise; no one can stop them until national production gets into full swing and competition levels off prices. Management of the city's new airport will have to be handled alertly, on a business-like basis, to assure revenue from the investment rather than a continued pouring of public funds into the project.

Indispensable expansion of the city's sewer and sewage treatment system must be financed wisely, with care taken that those who get most of the benefit pay most of the bill.

Times will not be easy for those handling the city's finances. But with the commendable actions taken in the past it can be expected that Mansfield will come through future years still in the enviable position it now holds among Ohio cities.

Greater Concern for Mental Health

THE NATIONAL mental health institute to be built outside Washington during the next two years will be a great gain in this country's neglected facilities for caring for the mentally ill. The hospital, which will be administered by the U. S. Public Health Service, will cost $7,500,000 and will have about $10,000,000 a year to spend on its program.

Purposes of the institute are to conduct research on mental illnesses, help with similar research all over the country, give financial aid to hospitals and schools working in the field, and help the various states with their programs. It will serve as both leader and coordinating force for all such work.

Need for such an institute is unquestioned. At present half of all the hospital beds in the country are used by mental patients, and over 125,000 persons with mental difficulties are admitted each year. Stories of the shortage of facilities for handling these patients, and of crowded conditions and unsatisfactory treatment, are all too common. The problems usually go back to two causes—lack of money, and lack of personnel trained in this special field.

The mentally ill should have just as good professional treatment as the physically ill, but in general they have had much less attention, less care, and less understanding.

Tragedy Emphasizes Water Danger

THE FREQUENTLY repeated warning of water danger is brought close home by the drowning of two Mansfield boys in Lake Erie Sunday. First thought is for the grief-stricken parents, who were witnesses of the tragedy, and for the two surviving brothers, in whose minds this frightful experience will continue vivid throughout life.

Then, too, there is the loss which the community sustains by the death of two fine boys, both of whom seemed destined to attain beyond the ordinary in later life.

While it cannot be escaped that water sports involve danger, it CAN be more seriously impressed upon children and adults alike, that greater care should be exercised, and that the dangers associated with boating and swimming should never be forgotten nor ignored.

Calendar Revision By 1950 Proposed

PROMOTION of the idea of calendar revision has reached the point of introduction of a resolution in congress calling for adoption of the "World Calendar" by Jan. 1, 1950.

Congressman Karl Mundt, South Dakota Republican, presents the measure, which has thus far failed to arouse any great show of interest in congress.

Several different forms of calendar revision have been proposed from time to time, with a view to equalizing months and simplifying record-keeping and accounting.

There has been some show of international interest in calendar revision, but when it is taken into account that several hundred years were required to bring about world agreement on the present calendar form it seems unlikely that the proposed deadline of 1950 will allow sufficient time for any such accomplishment.

Out in Hammond, Ind., a club has been formed, with members pledged to let their hair grow, rather than pay a dollar for a haircut—but what are they doing about three-for-a-quarter roastingears?

Churchmen Debate Unified Action

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THERE is before the World Conference of Churches now meeting in Cambridge, England, a project favored by Protestant leaders eight nations for joint action on global problems by Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Under this plan collaboration would be sought with the Roman Catholic church in putting a Christian viewpoint on peace questions before the statesmen of the world. Joint action would be based upon "some kind of satisfactory understanding at the highest level, presumably between the World Council of the Federal Council of Churches Commission on a Just and Durable Peace, has urged the conference to discuss the "extremely urgent matter" of tension between the Soviet Union and the West.

This move for joint action would provide a powerful theme for a sermon—if anybody wanted to preach one, which I don't.

However it does impel me to refer to the shocking moral and spiritual collapse from which many parts of war-torn Europe are now suffering as they struggle to regain their feet.

This may, or may not, fall within the scope of the proposal now before the Cambridge conference, but many continental states certainly need guidance which they cannot find in the pagan code that Hitler bequeathed not only to his own country but to other unhappy nations upon which he imposed his evil will.

One of the notable developments I encountered on my recent tour of Europe was joint action by the Catholics and Protestants in various parts of Germany to meet this situation. In both the British and the American zones of occupation I found that followers of the two faiths had combined politically, not under the designation of Protestants and Catholics but as a Christian party.

This slough of despond was, of course, in large degree the work of Hitler himself. Right from the beginning of his assumption of power in 1933 he set out to destroy Christianity in the Reich and substitute a pagan religion in which he himself played the part of a messiah.

His campaign was thoroughly organized and provided not only for the crippling of the churches but for the taking over of children and youths for training in the iniquitous Nazi doctrines.

By the time of the fateful Munich conference of '38, when I spent much time in Germany, the Fuehrer had made tremendous progress in changing the nature of his people, especially the young and more susceptible. While it was obvious that he was waging this drive against christianity, it wasn't clear why he was doing it, unless to satisfy his mountainous egotism.

His purpose did become apparent a year later when he launched his barbaric war to enslave Europe—maybe the world. In order to get his people to follow him in savagery which had no parallel in modern annals he had to deprive as many as he could of their christianity and substitute paganism, because no Christian could brook what he contemplated doing.

When I was in England not long ago I saw official Nazi confirmation that Hitler did try to destroy Christianity. This was a copy of a document taken from the secret archives in Berlin after the capitulation.

It asserted in effect that Christianity was a bulwark of democracy and that "the cross of the swastika seeks to destroy the cross of Christ."

Naturally Hitler couldn't destroy Christianity in Germany, but he did enough damage with his evil doctrines so that I was told by occupation authorities that Germans between the ages of fourteen and thirty-four were regarded as more or less lost to allied influence. Then, too, this anti-Christian Nazism spread into many surrounding countries to replace the code of the Sermon on the Mount with barbarism. In addition there are many people who have subscribed to political isms which teach that religion is the opiate of the masses.

So there is a vast field for combined Christian efforts if it is decided to undertake them.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, August 6, 1926.

Gertrude Ederle was the first woman to swim the English channel, from France to England—time 14 hours, 31 minutes.

George W. Snyder, 47, former street car motorman, died.

Kirk Ridge, Lucas violinist, was appearing in concerts in Mayo park, Rochester, Minn.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon L. Smith, 22 North Adams street.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Roderick, East Third street, left on month's trip to Colorado Springs.

Samuel Secrist, 50, died at his home in Monroe township.

Homer W. Smith, 212 Park avenue west, counted 450 automobiles pass his home between 8:30 and 9 p. m.

(Correction—It was 35 years ago—not 50 years ago—that "Roy Gardner was seriously injured by fall from bicycle"—it happened when he was 18, NOT 3 years old.)

* * *

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

Barney Beverstock's team ran away, badly damaging buggy.

Dave Boone Says:

WELL, there's to be a United Nations week September 22 to 28, as one way of getting public support for it, but it seems to me that boosting this great organization with the same routine that is used to boost bananas, doughnuts and housepainting leaves a lot to be desired.

* * *

The United Nations organization, hope of the world, is too important for one of these one-week whooplas. We should have a United Nations year and it should begin right now.

* * *

Furthermore, the churches should get behind it, giving it the spiritual mood that a matter like peace on earth deserves. UN seems pretty fumbling and futile at present, and it may continue that way unless there is a spiritual glow behind it which only universal public support can bring.

* * *

One of our troubles is this "one week" complex. Blowing hot seven days and blowing cold the other 358 means little in the way of expressing approval on any subject.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I didn't bring any along, dear. . . . Are you sure that was a hardboiled egg you swallowed?"

Calvin A. Byers

Diary: "Why I'm a Farmer."

"I CAN'T for the life of me see what you get out of farming," my city friend said candidly. "When I finish at the office, my time is my own, but you tie yourself up to so many humble, menial tasks and work with them early and late. Regardless of the hours you put in, they'll never be completed. You know that. Work will be here when you are gone . . . why waste your life?"

I thought about what he had said. I knew he had been sincere. I know that it pained him to find me perspiring about some farm task, whenever he came to our place. He is my friend. If I had gangs of workmen and merely bossed, he would like that better. If I hired and fired farmers and gardeners who completed every task on the premises on schedule, so that my farming was perfectly done, and an example to the surrounding countryside . . . he would think better of me. I would then be successful, in his eyes.

So I have set down a few points that came to me, and here they are:

1—I'm not an aristocrat. My people have all been land men. I guess the love of the soil is inherent in the Pennsylvania Dutch.

2—I like to be alone. The idea of living where houses are in close proximity to my own, along a hard paved thoroughfare, "greisles" me. Our brown farm cottage is a quarter of a mile from the nearest neighbor, and a half mile from the next-nearest. We own the land on both sides of our road . . . the whole view immediately outside our windows. Here our brood of five children can romp and sing and shout and quarrel with all their might and nobody but ourselves need be disturbed.

3—Farm work is humble, but it is healthful and sustaining. To both body and soul, if a man keeps his eyes and mind open. After many years, it becomes like a rite to plant, tend, reap and harvest. Hoeing garden and cultivating field crops are tasks that give a worker time for meditation, while his hands are busy. At such times the closeness of the soil gives strength . . . as honest toil will do.

4—It is a pleasant place to spend one's days. Wild birds sing in the hedges . . . clover meadows perfume the air . . . great trees tower above the winding creek. The sky is blue and the colors are ever-changing upon the landscape. Whoever has not experienced the joy of working along with Nature, cannot be a fair judge about values in a job.

5—Where but on a farm is every growing child an asset?

6—And finally, real freedom is of the spirit. It is fine to work with one's hands, if the task is done for the teaching of those who will follow. Work is one of the great blessings that idle people miss. There is, I think, no other satisfaction better than the knowledge of a job well done. I remain a farmer.

Assignment: America

—By KENNETH L. DIXON

Cities Resume Check On Local Conditions.

DENVER, Colo.—If it accomplished nothing else, the recent OPA recess prodded a lot of American cities into regaining at least some of their statistical self-respect and informational independence.

In short, they went back to keeping their own books—instead of depending on some state or federal bureau to do the job. For example:

In Denver today, you can find out the city's exact housing situation by checking with, (1) city officials, (2) the chamber of commerce, (3) county officers for the suburban situation, or (4) the local newspapers which pioneered current surveys.

Obviously, such statistics are necessary before any community can start solving its problems — whether they involve housing or employment, labor, taxes, cost of living on charity campaigns.

Nevertheless, during recent months of visiting hundreds of cities in more than a score of states, this correspondent found that few of the aforementioned officials or sources could supply up-to-date, specific information on any of those subjects.

They might bluff for a while with the vague and extremely general estimates, or some ancient report, but eventually they referred you to some state, regional or federal bureau or its local office, and, ironically, the buck-passing procedure usually was accompanied by cynical comment on the uselessness of that very bureau.

All across the country, housing is the average city's No. 1 problem. Yet city officials could give you little more specific information that "it's certainly terrible, all right," or "just look at these letters and complaints I've been getting."

Ask them to outline the 1946 situation with figures and percentages and they threw up their hands — and you found yourself talking to the nearest bureaucrat again.

But today, since the sudden end of rent controls spotlighted the nation's housing situation, call up the Denver city or county officials or the newspapers and you'll find there's hardly a residential vacancy in town. Also:

Denver's population has jumped 40,000 in three years, is still growing.

More than 1,000 families are doubling-up with relatives or friends.

Less than half the city's dwelling units are in good condition—that is not needing either major or minor repairs.

Low-income groups and racial minorities are hardest hit by the shortage and by lack of repair equipment, material and manpower.

New construction (although its quality still tends to be low) is proceeding more rapidly now.

Not all the information was easily available. Richard Dudman of the Denver Post, which made one survey, said:

"Some rents shot up. No one knew how many, how general was the rise . . . no complete survey of evictions had been made . . . no one knew how short of houses we were . . . how good are the ones we have . . . how many are being built . . . how good will they be . . . who are the persons suffering from the shortage . . . who, if any, are the persons who are profiting."

So the papers checked sources and made surveys. The city council, plagued by booing crowds, made surveys. So did the county officials and the chamber of commerce. They pooled their information and found out the current situation.

And now, although federal rent control is back, Denver—like many another American city—has armed itself with the factual information it needs to fight its local housing battle.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

Congress will not return until after the snow flies and there are indications that several members will be lost in the November blizzard.

* * *

But it's nice to know that right after Christmas, the season of peace, and New Year's, the season of hope, comes the new congress and open season.

* * *

The new congress will get higher pay. . . . Mr. Truman felt there should be more money in the job and something should be done about it. The Mead committee, of course, already is working on the theory that something was done about it.

* * *

I don't know just who will be back. . . . The CIO now is preparing its list so we will know exactly who to vote for until the AFL list comes out. I don't know how we ever got along in the days when we didn't have this expert advice. . . . It's very fortunate for us that this country grew rich and great by accident.

Some Secret Discussions Still Going On.

PARIS—(By Wireless)—Despite Secretary Byrnes' new, laudable policy of open covenants openly arrived at, some highly important metings have been taking place behind the scenes at the peace conference here. For obvious reasons certain things have to be discussed in secret. Here are some of them:

Session No. 1—Brynes got a report via the British foreign office that Russia was secretly selling captured German arms to Sweden for resale to Argentina. This by no means made him happy. The United States has followed a strict policy of keeping army away from Fascist Argentina, and only one month ago, Argentine Chief of Staff General Carlos von der Becke made a special trip to see General Eisenhower to plead for arms. Eisenhower said no.

Now it develops that Russia is gathering up arms from occupied Germany and handing them over to Sweden for resale to Argentina on the excuse that it needs foreign exchange.

Byrnes, in planning a formal protest in writing against this, also plans to take the matter up with Molotoff personally.

Session No. 2—Molotoff has been trying to argue busy Jimmie Byrnes into giving permanent and official recognition of Latvia's, Lithuania's and Estonia's incorporation into the Soviet. In one session, Molotoff told Jimmie that Churchill and Roosevelt both had given the nod to these three Baltic states as part of Russia. The FDR-Winston OK, he said, was given at Teheran and Yalta. Byrnes, however, didn't want to recognize the Baltic states as yet.

Session No. 3—Between Byrnes and France's handsome, pink-cheeked Foreign Minister Bidault. Byrnes has been trying to persuade Bidault to join the USA and the United Kingdom in unifying Germany. But the Frenchman has been stubborn. Like Attlee, he is in a trading mood and has declined to agree to unification of Germany unless—and this is a big unless—France gets two concessions:

(1) More territory from Italy.

(2) Complete French control of the Saar Valley, with its rich coal deposits plus the industrially wealthy Rhinelapd.

Obviously Jimmie Byrnes, good a trader as he may be, can't trade away these points, because they have to be decided by the rest of the conference. The tragic fact is that while the delegates barter and haggle, conditions in Germany are drifting dangerously—so dangerously that unification may come too late.

Molotoff Cocktail.

The hard-hitting, mercurial foreign minister of Russia has changed his tactics a lot since the United Nations Conference at San Francisco. Also, since the Council of Foreign Ministers in London last September.

At San Francisco he jumped all over the smaller nations. At Paris, Molotoff is playing his cards more carefully. Perhaps he realizes that public opinion has crystallized against Russia.

At any rate, instead of hurling Molotoff cocktails when things went against him, he has been outwardly patient and calm. He leans over backward to explain Russia's position.

When he saw the votes were stacked against him on the question of public committee meetings, Molotoff immediately jumped on the opposition bandwagon. He seconded Byrnes' motion that the press be admitted. On important questions, of course, Molotoff doesn't budge an inch. But at least he has learned to be more polite about them.

Division of Powers Complicates Action.

WASHINGTON — "1946 is our year of decision. This year we lay the foundation of our economic structure which will have to serve for generations. . . . This year we shall have to make the decisions which will determine whether or not we gain the future at home and abroad which we fought so valiantly to achieve."

Those were the brave words of President Truman in a radio address to the nation on January 3. He was reporting to the people on the issues to come before the congress soon to convene.

Critics of the president will say he himself had made so many wrong decisions that the nation was already badly off course. At the direction of the White House, controls were taken off construction, wage stabilization was abondoned and the War Labor Board abolished.

Republican congressmen will certainly try to put the blame on the president. This is the kettle calling the pot black. It serves merely to point up the serious difficulty of government under our system of divided powers. It underscores the fact that we are faced with a constitutional crisis which promises in the next two or three years to overshadow every decision and every issue.

The president's party has had a majority in both houses in congress. The president had a short-term program intended to bring about an orderly conversion from war to peace, and a long-term program designed to help keep the nation's economy on an even keel. Very few of his legislative recommendations were carried out, and those that were adopted got badly chopped up.

The most significant examples of failure are in price control and housing. A great majority of Americans wanted to continue effective price control. Yet what came out of congress was so cloudy, confused and complicated that it will not be very effective.

The large majority in the senate in favor of public housing included men who consider themselves conservatives, such as Sen. Taft of Ohio. Presumably, a similar majority in the house would have favored the Taft-Wagner-Ellender bill if it had ever got up for a vote.

Price control and housing illustrate perfectly how powerful lobbies can block needed legislation desired by a majority in congress and by a majority of the American people. A variety of special pressure groups worked to emasculate price control. The real-estate lobby successfully blocked the housing bill essential to carry out the veterans' housing program.

The committee system in congress further complicates our divided government. Invoking antiquated rules, three or four Republicans blocked the housing bill in committee.

In earlier times, when economic and industrial power were not so centralized and when America's economic power was not so dominant, we could afford a "panic." We could afford a long depression, even though millions suffered.

Now, with the world contracted to the size of a baseball, we cannot afford it. The physical environment in which we live has utterly and completely changed since our constitution was framed.

Crump Machine Running In High Gear.

MEMPHIS—There was an interesting phenomenon in the primary election here that resulted in the triumphant renomination of veteran Sen. Kenneth D. McKellar, dean of the senate, its president pro tem and chairman of its powerful appropriations committee.

The election was another victory for Boss Ed H. Crump of Memphis, who supported the senator and Gov. Jim McCord. The victory was fairly easy.

Then why one of the most brazen and ruthless performances by the machine ever put on in this city, described by a veteran of Crump elections as the biggest steal in the long history of Crump supremacy? There's the phenomenon.

It had been generally conceded beforehand that Boss Crump would have his way again and for obvious reasons. He had his powerful machine here in Memphis which spreads its influence over the state. The opposition had little money and was badly organized.

It might have been thought that the boss would take this opportunity to put on a fairly clean show here in Memphis, for once, to cleanse his reputation somewhat. His foes before the election surmised hopefully that the tremendous exertion and the expenditure of so much indicated anxiety.

That hardly seems as adequate explanuation in view of the result, in which both Senator McKellar and Governor McCord won a majority outstate and did not need the usual "long count" and the usual election tactics.

But it was all here. Why? The best answer seems to be that Boss Crump wanted to get the handsomest victory possible in order to establish his supremacy beyond all doubt and to crush so ruthlessly the opposition that dared to raise itself that it would frighten any one with ideas of challenging him hereafter.

The opposition was concentrated in CIO which is a rising political challenge to Boss Crump, as it is to politicians elsewhere in the south. The CIO not only was active in trying to stir up votes against the boss but also in organizing in cooperation with the Clean Election league a corps of poll watchers.

Yet there were something less than 4,000 votes counted here for Mr. Carmack and slightly under 6,000 for Gordon Browning, anti-Crump candidate for governor.

The election irregularities indicated that the machine used the long count again. The record is being compiled by the CIO and the Clean elector leagus and it bristles already with incidents that would be shocking in most every other city.

Stalin Explains Need of "Iron Curtain."

Walter Lippmann is on vacation for several weeks. His column will be resumed upon his return.

PARIS—On a single occasion during the war, the key question of our times was put to Generalissimo Stalin. Winston Churchill, with his accustomed boldness, asked the Soviet dictator how soon, if ever, he would relax his iron system and permit the Soviet Union and its satellites to enjoy free intercourse with the outer world.

Stalin replied frankly that the wall between the Soviet system and the west could never be broken down, until the Soviet standard of life could bear comparison with the living standard elsewhere.

There is every reason to believe that Stalin's answer was honest. And with the Soviet Union now committed to a new five-year plan, which channels most of its productive energy into military reconstruction, there is no reason to believe that a change in the relations between the Soviet Union and the west will come in the near future. On the contrary, the evidence suggests that the existing division will grow deeper and the existing tension will mount further.

The Soviet choice was made immediately after the Yalta conference. Those who were present at Yalta are still convinced that Stalin was not indulging in double talk when he promised Churchill and Roosevelt the democratization of the eastern European governments.

If that promise had been carried out, it would have implied a new, non-imperialistic Soviet policy of building a better life within the Soviet Union and collaborating with America and Britain in all issues arising beyond the Soviet borders. But it was not carried out.

Whether Stalin changed his mind or was reversed by the Politbureau, the promise was immediately broken.

Within one week of the termination of the Yalta conference, the grim Vishinsky appeared at Bucharest and by open menaces of force established the Groza government in Romania.

Warnings Are Unheeded.

The story since that time should be familiar to everyone. At every international meeting, and whenever an opportunity has been offered at Moscow, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin and other qualified representatives of the two countries have repeated the same warnings to Stalin and to Molotov.

Soviet policy, they have pointed out, by dividing the Soviet system from the west and seeking at the same time to expand the Soviet system at the expense of the west, was simply laying the foundations of an anti-Soviet grand alliance of the western powers. Their warnings have gone unheeded. The Soviets have persisted in their policy. And now no sensible observer at this so-called "Peace Conference" supposes that the great issues under discussion are much more than border disputes between the two systems, or ignores that the beginnings of a grand alliance already exist.

Meanwhile there are indications that the Soviet policy of military reconstruction at home and expansion abroad is encountering difficulties in execution.

During the Mihailovitch trial at Belgrade, for example, important non-Communist eastern European leaders, such as the Bulgarian minister of war, General Velcheff, were laboriously implicated in Mihailovitch's alleged crimes.

This is taken to mean that in the near future a general liquidation of personalities not regarded as dependably pro-Soviet will be considered necessary. The blood of its potential leaders may drown the opposition in the Balkan states.

But in Poland, where a brave people's major political experience has been underground resistance, the position is more troublesome. Reliable reports indicate that the Polish puppet government was stunned by the real results of the recent referendum. In view of the admitted 40 per cent vote for Micholaiczyk, qualified diplomatic observers put the real anti-government total at around 70 per cent. That means that Poland must be held down by sheer military forces.

Outside Help Needed.

No less striking was Molotov's recent demand for the immense total of ten billion dollars of German reparations from current production, which contravened the Potsdam agreement both as to the sum and the method of collection.

Since the meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers there have been signs that although the two objectives are apparently contradictory the Soviet representatives will seek German reparations just as insistently as they seek opportunities for the communization of Germany as a whole. The obvious inference is that the Russian economy urgently needs this external assistance.

Thus it is believed that there is little danger of a final clash between the Soviet and Western systems during the next years, while the Soviets are preoccupied with rebuilding their military strength and tightening their grip on their satellites.

On the other hand, it is obvious that when these processes are completed, the danger of war will be appalling if the world is still divided into the great, hostile, armed camps.

Indeed, war in the long run can only be averted by a change in Soviet policy or a surrender to the Soviet system by the west.

A western surrender, although it is not impossible in the event of a failure of American leadership, is not considered by the men of Paris.

As to the chances of a change in Soviet policy, it is considered that there are only three ways in which this can occur. One is obviously war. One is an internal convulsion, which will unseat the expansionist faction in the Politbureau and give the power to the advocates of the old Litvinoff policy of collaboration and collective security (if any such remain).

And one is an enforced change, which the masters of the Kremlin might make if they find themselves confronted with such unity and strength in the west as to be convinced that their present policy was unworkable and unrealistic.

The next years, and especially the moment when Stalin passes from the scene, will test the possibilities of a change from within Russia. Most observers here do not rate those chances very high, and some even contended that difficulties at home will drive the masters of the Kremlin, in the familiar manner of all autocrats, to create further diversions aboard.

If this conclusion is correct, the unity and strength of the west are the only hopes of the future.

It is all well and good for some experienced player to tell a less hardened campaigner exactly what he should do in certain situations. But when he gets too didatic about misfit hands — in which neither pair has a suit that really is well matched up between the partners, and nobody has a solid suit to run at No Trumps—he may make himself smart Alecky by being too definite. There are many hands in which different intelligent guesses are made by a whole bunch of pretty good bidders.

In a five-table duplicate game, the declarer who got into that 3-Spade contract made it, following the club 5 lead to the A and a ruffed return, as he later lost only one trick to the diamond Q and one to the spake K.

At Table 2, South passed the 3-Diamonds to see if North wanted to double, which he did, and it was set two tricks for a score of 300.

At Table 3, North passed his partner's 3-Hearts because of the apparent misfit, and that was set two with the loss of two trump tricks and one each in the other suits plus a ruff of a club.

At Table 4, West did not overcall, so North responded with 1-Spade. East bid 2-Diamonds, South made an odd pass and North doubled, beating it one trick.

The most interesting play developed where bidding went as shown until North's second turn, when he bid 3-No Trumps. He got a terrific top, even with the misfit suits and distribution far from No-Trumpish. The club 5 went to the A and the diamond return gave the Q a trick. The heart J was won by the A, whereupon the spade 9 was finessed, the A dropped the Q, and the spade K got the defense's last trick. The club return gave South three more club tricks, one more heart, two more spades and one more diamond for a total of ten, his contract plus an extra trick.

JEAN CAROLYN PERRY BRIDE OF C. C. DILL

Ceremony Takes Place In First Methodist Church Sunday; Reception at Home of Bride's Parents.

THE First Methodist church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jean Carolyn Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Perry, 12 North Smith avenue, and Clinton Charles Dill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dill of Bellville, Sunday.

Rev. C. W. Stoneburner officiated at the 3 p. m. ceremony with Mrs. Willis Naas, organist, and Miss Marilyn Green, vocalist, providing the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a white marquisette and lace wedding dress. Her circular veil, which had been worn by her mother, was attached to a heart shaped tiara. Her bouquet was of gardenias and white asters.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Russell Sheriff of Bellville as matron-of-honor, and Miss Vivian Dill, sister of the bridegroom, of Bellville and Miss Norma Lee Mitchell, as bridesmaids. All wore dresses of blue eyelet pique. Mrs. Sheriff carried a bouquet of deep rose asters and pale yellow roses. The bridesmaids bouquets were of pink asters and deep pink roses.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Perry chose a black sheer crepe street length dress with white accessories. Mrs. Dill wore a white tailored suit with powder blue and white accessories. Both had gardenia corsages.

Russell E. Sheriff, of Bellville, brother-in-law of the bride served as best man with Donald C. Perry, brother of the bride, Charles Schroeder, Eugene Schroeder, and Raymond Thrush, all cousins of the bridegroom as ushers.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a woman of 32, and have been married 10 years. I can't remember when I was out with my husband.

He is never home day or night, and he ran around for awhile, too. I'm very nervous, and don't like the life I'm living. I have one child, and live alone most of the time. But I can't take it much longer, and I don't know what to do. Can you tell me what I should do? S. S.

It seems as though you should either get yourself outside work, so that you could be away from home yourself during the day and see other people and think about something besides your loneliness, or else have some friend, or some member of your family, come and stay with you for awhile. Is either of these things possible?

Naturally it is harder to work outside the home if you have a child to look after, but perhaps you might make some arrangement for the child's care during the day.

You do not say whether you live in the country, where it might be hard to find work and to arrange for your child, or in some town where such things are easier. Certainly I do not think anyone can live a lonely life indefinitely and I do think it is time you took some step to make things happier for yourself. Possibly you might be able to pay your family a visit. If your husband had to get along without you for several weeks, it might wake him up and make him realize what he is doing to you.

* * *

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years old and go with a boy in his twenties, who was honorably discharged from the service the latter part of last year. We've been going together several months, and he often tells me he thinks a lot of me and would do anything in this world for me.

But it seems he isn't satisfied with me. A friend saw him with another girl and told me. Somehow he found out that I knew, and he told me that it was true but that he only went with her for what he got. This hurt me terribly, and I cried.

Then he said that he didn't realize I thought that much of him, and he told me I should not have learned to love him as he isn't worth it. He said he didn't have sense enough to appreciate a nice girl. But still he comes and asks me to go with him as before, and since I love him, I can't refuse. Should I keep on going with him, or try to forget him, which would be hard to do?

A Heart-Broken Girl

I think you'd be a wise girl to accept this young man's estimate of himself—that he just doesn't have sense enough to appreciate a nice girl—and make up your mind to forget him. Of course it will be hard to do, but it won't be as hard now as it will later on, if you keep going with him in the hope that he'll change and find he doesn't.

Any young man who tells you frankly that he is going with another girl just for what he can get from her is surely not a type for you to pin any hopes on, for I'm afraid he'll only be likely to hurt you repeatedly. I would refuse to go out with him any more.

Washington Letter

—By Jane Eads

WASHINGTON — The snafu in the method for getting pictures of the Bikini atom bomb tests released to the public has been about as colossal as the bomb itself.

Even Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, who runs the $100,000,000 show, has trouble getting his way with a security panel which sits in Washington and decides just which views of the drama the taxpayers may see. This panel reviews both official pictures and those taken by press services. The panel is composed of 15 members. Each has a veto that carries certain death. Various divisions of the Army, Navy and Manhattan project are represented, each division having a veto.

* * *

All the pictures shipped to Washington are marked secret. Public relations officials quickly case the batch for newsworthy "shots." Then the panel members look them over. It is said that then the vetoes fly like buckshot. The result is that what the public sees is almost literally "one in a thousand."

Complaints about the handling of the atom pictures have been heard farther than the bomb. Eventually these complaints reached the ear of Admiral Blandy. He radioed to get the photos moving.

After a while Blandy sent a package of color photographs to the panel. He attached a note explaining that he personally had reviewed the pictures. He suggested they be released at once.

The panel was unimpressed. The pictures were again held up. Reports are that Blandy was burned up.

"I authorize and direct you to release the package of pictures," Blandy is said to have told the panel bluntly.

Again nothing happened.

The board debated as to whether the Admiral had the authority to "direct" them to do anything. However, after studying the "Operation Crossroads" organization chart, they eventually were convinced they are temporarily under Blandy. The pictures may yet be released but, many feel, not before their news value has waned.

Meanwhile Blandy has under consideration a recommendation that the panel be reduced in number, which he believes might be a step toward expediting its operations.

* * *

Some critics say the trouble with the panel is that there seems to be no clear definition of responsibility.

It is believed that the representative of a unit censors pictures only with respect to matters involving his unit. That is, an electronics expert would look at a picture only to see whether its publication would violate security in that particular field.

The panel has worked long hours, staying on the job weekends and even sitting late at night, but is slow to receive suggestions for easing its task.

For example, when a single negative is selected from a package of 24 as newsworthy enough to justify review, the panel insists that every picture in the pack be reviewed.

Parisian Comments On U. S. Clothes

By BARBARA BUNDSCHU
(UP Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK—American women dress like the democrats they are—but that may not be good.

Mme. Carven, 26-year-old youngster of the French couturiers, made no political comparisons, but she pointed out with favor the fact that well dressed Parisians, though comparatively few in numbers, were more striking in appearance than American women who could afford the same things.

"I think that, taken as a whole, American women are certainly better turned out than French women," Mme. Carven said in an interview under auspices of "L 'Officiel de la Couture et de la Mode de Paris," French fashion magazine recently made available to American readers.

"But they are all dressed in too similar a manner. I can't help preferring the individuality of the Parisiene."

Mme. Carven, who recently completed a three week visit in New York, said she was surprised at the lack of concern American women gave to the materials and workmanship of their clothes.

"There are funny paradoxes in American women," she said. "They have the most beautiful shoes and stockings I have ever seen. They love beautiful leather and beautiful furs and know all about them, but at the same time they are not very demanding about the materials used in making their clothes."

The slight and charming young woman, who concentrates her own work on designing for the young and petite, expressed greatest admiration for what American designers and manufacturers are making for teen-age girls—they "are certainly by far the best dressed group."

And where this Frenchwoman takes pride in her own nation for its great exclusive design market, she envies the Americans their practicality.

"Your tools for every kind of work are so perfect. Look at your machines for steam pressing, they are marvelous."

New York Notes

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

When Prose Was In Flower—(In Hollywood!. — Browsing through old movie magazines is so much fun, as I've said before. Let's take another peak at the fan publication of the early twenties, when film-goers really had their idols up on those tall, tall pedestals. Are you ready? First we'll examine a precious document appearing in Motion Picture Magazine, a 1919 issue, titled "Florence Vidor Talks of Love" and written by Media Mistley, who seemed to have the perfect by-line for that type of thing.

"There is a hint of the South in Florence Vidor's voice—at least it suggested to me something of the stately old times, the minuet, a harpsichord.

"'Love,' said Miss Vidor, pausing over the soft-spoken word, 'love, as I see it, is like a wonderful river that flows on forever, meeting at times little obstacles, sometimes greater ones, over which it passes with a little murmur or a great splashing and turmoil. But in the end it flows peacefully again into the sea, the open sea. Was it H. G. Wells who said: 'We are all things that make and pass, striving on a hidden mission, out to the open sea?' I hope that's correctly quoted. It's from 'Tono-Bungay', you know. (Editor's Note: Of course, what else?) What is the open sea? Life or eternity? Anyway, love is like that to me, self-immolation, unselfishness, giving and forgiving, bearing and forebearing.'

Here is another excerpt tagged "Piquancy And Practicality." It was written by Gladys Hall about Billie Burke.

"Billie Burke has the pleasant manner of speaking — easy, quick, matter of fact, without flourish and without hyperbole. In every phrase, she demonstrates her essential practicality. And when she plays, she plays like a kitten—mischievously.

"She adores simple frocks and ginghams and tennis shoes. She prefers sunshine to moonshine. She does not like expensive perfumes. She even reads the newspapers. She looks fourteen and has thoughts like forty. She is saucy and debonair and carefree in her attitude, but she has known tears as well as laughter in her heart. She has taken the two elements of hard practicality and effervescent piquancy and of the delicious compound she has concocted — Billie Burke!"

The late William S. Hart, silent picture cowboy star, was described by Hazel Simpson Naylor, in 1919, in this fashion:

"Bill Hart may never find his ideal, for he is a tremendous idealist—strong, straight, homely, gentle, kindly and true. There are about him the qualities of Richard Coeur de Lion, something of the sternness of the Puritans, of the stoicism of the Indians, and of the gentleness of a mother. Gaiety sometimes makes one forget that tired feeling, but Bill can't seek surcease that way. You see, he has an ideal to live up to, and some day when he finds time, there will be a brisk canter up to the mountainside, a tent stretched in a wind, a protected hollow, and the stars and the sky and the coyotes calling. Bill Hart's steel gray eyes seem to ask these things."
